APPOINTMENTS & HONORS

FROM THE DEAN

At the core of every outstanding law school, you will find a faculty composed of talented and dedicated scholars. The University of Georgia School of Law's faculty includes a Pulitzer Prize winner, Fulbright scholars, former U.S. Supreme Court and other federal court clerks, and former leading trial and corporate attorneys, as well as recipients of numerous national- and university-level teaching awards.

I am pleased to announce Georgia Law has enhanced its seasoned faculty this fall with the addition of three professors and an internationally-experienced administrator. Moreover, four members of our faculty have been awarded promotions in recognition of their excellent work both in and out of the classroom. In this brochure, you will find the details of these appointments and honors.

At Georgia Law, our faculty prides itself on striking the very important balance between classroom teaching and scholarly pursuits. As professors, it is our duty not only to teach students how to think critically and to analyze complex issues, but we also feel compelled to question conventional thinking and to further explore and develop the law governing our state, nation and world. In the latter vein, a listing of the recent scholarly work of my colleagues is also available for your perusal.

Sincerely,

Rebecca H. White
Interim Dean and J. Alton Hosch Professor of Law

NEW APPOINTMENT

Peter J. Spiro

Dean and Virginia Rusk Professor of International Law

B.A., Harvard University

J.D., University of Virginia

Specializing in international law, the constitutional aspects of U.S. foreign relations, and immigration and nationality law, Peter J. Spiro joined the faculty of Georgia Law as the holder of the Dean and Virginia Rusk Professorship of International Law.

Before coming to UGA, Spiro spent 10 years at Hofstra University School of Law serving as a tenured professor and associate dean for faculty development. In 1997, he was awarded an Open Society Institute/Soros Foundation fellowship to study the law of American citizenship. He studied the growing role of non-governmental organizations in international decision-making as a Council on Foreign Relations International Affairs Fellow in 1993-94.

Spiro is a former law clerk to Justice David H. Souter of the U.S. Supreme Court and Judge Stephen F. Williams of the District of Columbia Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals. He has also served as director for democracy on the staff of the National Security Council (a White House position), as an attorney-adviser in the U.S. Department of State's Office of the Legal Adviser and as a resident associate at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

A recent survey of academic citation frequencies ranked him in the national top 20 of legal scholars entering the profession since 1992. Some of Spiro's latest work includes: "Disaggregating U.S. Interests in International Law" in Law and Contemporary Problems (forthcoming), "Treaties, International Law, and Constitutional Rights" in the Stanford Law Review and "Globalization and the (Foreign Affairs) Constitution" in the Ohio State Law Journal. He has also published articles in the Texas, Michigan, New York University, Fordham, Virginia, William & Mary and Emory law reviews and has contributed analysis to such publications as Foreign Affairs, The Wall Street Journal and The New Republic.

Spiro is a frequent speaker in academic and policy forums on dual citizenship, the interaction of federal states with the international system and the role of NGOs in international institutions.

At Georgia Law, Spiro will lead classes in immigration law, human rights and international trade.

"I was attracted to Georgia Law by its strong tradition in international law. The Rusk Center was one of the first of its kind and continues to be an important venue for work in the field."

UGA's long association with the late Dean Rusk and Louis Sohn established the school's reputation as a leader in international law. The current international law faculty, including Daniel Bodanksy, Gabriel Wilner and Dorinda Dallmeyer, have continued this tradition."

The Dean and Virginia Rusk Professorship of International Law was established by generous donors wanting to honor the former secretary of state and his wife. Rusk served on Georgia Law's faculty from 1970 to 1994 and is the namesake of the law school's renowned international unit, the Dean Rusk Center -- International, Comparative and Graduate Legal Studies.

AWARDED NEW TITLE

Michael L. Wells

Marion and W. Colquitt Carter Chair in Tort and Insurance Law

B.A., University of Virginia

J.D., University of Virginia

Michael L. Wells has been named the new holder of the Marion and W. Colquitt Carter Chair in Tort and Insurance Law. He joined Georgia Law's faculty in 1978 and specializes in the fields of torts, federal courts and constitutional law. Since 1991, he has occupied a prestigious J. Alton Hosch Professorship at the law school.

Wells is the coauthor of two books, Cases and Materials on Constitutional Torts (with T. Eaton and S. Nahmod) and Constitutional Remedies (with T. Eaton). He has also published numerous articles in such leading journals as the Cornell Law Review, Duke Law Journal, Virginia Law Review, Georgia Law Review, William & Mary Law Review, Constitutional Commentary and Yale Journal of International Law. Select recent articles include: "International Norms in Constitutional Law" in the Georgia Journal of International and Comparative Law, "Proximate Cause and the American Law Institute: The False Choice Between the 'Direct Consequences' Test and the 'Risk Standard'" in the University of Richmond Law Review, "Article II and the Florida Election Case" in the Maryland Law Review, "Were There Adequate State Grounds in Bush v. Gore?" in Constitutional Commentary and "Section 1983, The First Amendment and Public Employee Speech: Shaping the Right to Fit the Remedy (and Vice Versa)" in the Georgia Law Review.

He is fluent in French and has served as a visiting professor at the University of Lyon (III) on six occasions, as a visiting scholar at the University of Aix-Marseille in Aix-en-Provence and as a professor at the Duke-Geneva Institute in Transactional Law. He has also taught at the College of William & Mary and Boston University as a visiting professor.

Wells clerked for Judge John D. Butzner Jr. of the Fourth Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals and practiced with the law firm of Covington & Burling in Washington, D.C., before joining the law faculty at UGA.

He leads classes in torts, constitutional law, constitutional litigation, federal courts and insurance.

"Through my research, I would like to persuade other scholars, as well as lawyers and judges, that propositions they may have taken for granted are not necessarily true. In particular, I would like to show them that the law of constitutional remedies is more complex than the conventional wisdom seems to suppose it is."

The Marion and W. Colquitt Carter Chair in Tort and Insurance Law was established in 1986 in honor of Colquitt, who was a distinguished Georgian attorney who obtained his undergraduate degree at UGA, and Marion, who was the great granddaughter of Thomas R.R. Cobb, one of the founders of Georgia Law.

AWARDED NEW TITLE

Anne Proffitt Dupre

J. Alton Hosch Professor of Law

B.A., University of Rhode Island

J.D., University of Georgia

“There is no question in my mind that Georgia Law’s students are some of the finest people, who are attached to some of the best minds, in the country. I believed that this was true when I first came here as a student in 1985, and it is still true today.”

The fourth woman in Georgia Law history to be appointed to an endowed position is Anne Proffitt Dupre. This Georgia Law graduate, who graduated first in her class and served as editor-in-chief of the Georgia Law Review, now occupies one of five prestigious J. Alton Hosch professorships at the law school.

Dupre joined the law school’s faculty in 1994. A former public school teacher, she has chosen to focus her scholarship on education law and has written and lectured extensively on the subject. Her scholarship includes: Children and the Law: Cases and Materials (with M. Gardner), “School Funding Litigation: Who’s Winning the War” in the Vanderbilt Law Review (with J. Dayton), “A Study in Double Standards, Discipline, and the Disabled Student” in the Washington Law Review and “Education Transformation: The Lesson from Argentina” in the Vanderbilt Journal of Transnational Law.

She has also spoken on such issues as civility and academic freedom, student misconduct and school discipline, family and educational privacy, First Amendment and public schools, and Title IX and sexual harassment at numerous national school law conferences.

Dupre received the Blue Key Young Alumnus Award presented by UGA’s Blue Key chapter in 2000. She has earned the Faculty Book Award for Excellence in Teaching and the John C. O’Byrne Award for Significant Contributions Furthering Faculty-Student Relations, which are presented by the law school’s student body. She has received several campus-wide teaching honors including: an International Fellowship (1998); a Lilly Teaching Fellowship (1995-97), awarded to a select group of new professors who demonstrate great promise as teachers and scholars; and induction into the university’s Teaching Academy (2001).

Dupre is one of four UGA law faculty members who have served as U.S. Supreme Court judicial law clerks. She clerked for Justice Harry A. Blackmun of the U.S. Supreme Court following her clerkship with Judge J.L. Edmondson of the 11th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals. She also worked as an attorney with the Washington, D.C., firm of Shaw, Pittman, Potts & Trowbridge before joining UGA’s faculty.

She teaches Contracts, Education Law, Children and the Law, and Remedies.

The J. Alton Hosch Professorship Fund was created in 1993 by a bequest made by former Georgia Law dean of 29 years, J. Alton Hosch. He was the longest serving dean at UGA and at any ABA-accredited law school at the time of his retirement in June 1964.

C. Donald Johnson

Interim Director, Dean Rusk Center -- International, Comparative and Graduate Legal Studies

B.A., University of Georgia

J.D., University of Georgia

LL.M., London School of Economics

C. Donald Johnson joined Georgia Law as interim director of the Dean Rusk Center -- International, Comparative and Graduate Legal Studies in June 2004. In this role, Johnson is responsible for the management and direction of the center and will work to strengthen and enhance its visibility and initiatives. In doing so, Johnson will work to expand the center's academic offerings and increase its outreach activities.

As a former U.S. congressman and ambassador, he brings to Georgia Law a distinguished career in both the public and private sectors. Most recently, Johnson was vice-chairman of Fleishman-Hillard Government Relations in Washington, D.C., where he specialized in international trade and investment, national security and foreign policy issues and assisted such clients as the government of Hong Kong with bilateral trade, human rights, constitutional reform and domestic security law matters. He previously dealt with similar international policy issues as a partner at the law firm of Patton Boggs in Washington, D.C.

In 1998, he was nominated to the rank of ambassador by President Bill Clinton and for over two years served as chief textile negotiator and principal adviser to both the president and the U.S. trade representative on all textile and apparel trade matters. Among the significant negotiations concluded during Johnson's tenure in office was the U.S.-Cambodia Textile Agreement, which is considered a landmark because it included for the first time labor provisions linked to trade benefits and has been praised by leaders of both political parties.

In 1993-94, Johnson served as U.S. representative for the 10th district of Georgia. While in this position, he was a member of the House Armed Services and the Space, Science and Technology committees and focused on national security and international economic policy.

Johnson also served in the Georgia State Senate from 1987 to 1992, where he was chairman of the Appropriations Committee, vice-chairman of the Judiciary Committee and served as an assistant floor leader for Gov. Joe Frank Harris. In addition, his public service includes a four-year stint in the U.S. Air Force Judge Advocate General's Office and serving as trade counsel to the U.S. House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee.

“Given our very talented international law faculty, highly-productive staff and an eager group of law students keenly interested in the role of law in a global society, the Dean Rusk Center has enormous potential. My goal is that we become recognized as the premier center for international law scholarship in the Southeast.”

AWARDED PROMOTION AND TENURE

Lonnie T. Brown, Jr.

Associate Professor of Law

B.A., Emory University

J.D., Vanderbilt University

Lonnie T. Brown, Jr., has been promoted to associate professor of law with tenure. He joined the faculty of Georgia Law in 2002 and specializes in professional responsibility and civil procedure.

His recent scholarship includes: “‘May It Please the Camera ... I Mean the Court’ -- An Intrajudicial Solution to an Extrajudicial Problem” in the Georgia Law Review (forthcoming), “Racial Discrimination in Jury Selection: Professional Misconduct, Not Legitimate Advocacy” in The Review of Litigation and the Foreword to “Ethics 2000 and Beyond: Reform or Professional Responsibility as Usual?” in the University of Illinois Law Review.

Prior to joining UGA, Brown was an assistant professor at the University of Illinois College of Law and served as a visiting assistant professor at Vanderbilt University Law School. He also served as a law clerk for Judge William C. O’Kelley of the Northern District of Georgia U.S. District Court. From 1991 to 1999, he practiced law as an associate and then a partner at Alston & Bird in Atlanta.

Currently, Brown teaches Civil Procedure I, Civil Procedure II, Legal Profession and Conflict of Laws.

“I definitely enjoy the give-and-take with students in the classroom that occurs when trying to understand particularly complex points and witnessing the development of first-year students’ ability to analyze and comprehend such issues.”

Alexander W. Scherr

Associate Professor of Law and Director of Civil Clinics

B.A., Yale University

J.D., University of Michigan

Alexander W. Scherr has been promoted to associate professor of law with tenure. He joined UGA in 1996 as the inaugural director of civil clinics. Over the last eight years, he has designed, created and directed the school’s Civil Externship program and Family Violence Clinic, and helped to create its Land Use Clinic. He also directs the Public Interest Practicum and has taught courses in dispute resolution; evidence; and interviewing, counseling and negotiation.

His recent scholarship includes “Daubert and Danger: The ‘Fit’ of Expert Predictions in Civil Commitments” in the Hastings Law Review and “Lawyers and Decisions: A Model of Practical Judgment” in the Villanova Law Review. In addition, Scherr edits Georgia Law of Evidence (5th ed., 1999).

Scherr serves as a leader in clinical education nationally and has helped to pioneer training for new clinicians. Before teaching, Scherr spent two years in private law practice in Vermont and then 11 years at Vermont Legal Aid, where he directed both its general program and the Mental Health Law Project.

“As a teacher, you can expect anything of a Georgia Law student: becoming governor, pioneering new law, starting an innovative practice, offering a vital service or achieving real balance in life. If you point students to the lawyers that they want to become, the odds are good that they will reach those goals and find lives of distinction and real satisfaction.”

NEW APPOINTMENTS

Erica J. Hashimoto

Assistant Professor of Law

A.B., Harvard University

J.D., Georgetown University

Erica J. Hashimoto joined the faculty of Georgia Law as an assistant professor concentrating in the areas of criminal law and evidence.

She developed a practical understanding of criminal law while serving four years as an assistant federal public defender in the Office of the Federal Public Defender in Washington, D.C. In this position, she gained significant trial experience representing clients charged with a variety of federal crimes, including guns, drugs, fraud and threats on the president.

Prior to holding this position, Hashimoto was a law clerk for Judge David S. Tatel of the District of Columbia Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals (1999-2000) and Judge Paul L. Friedman of the District of Columbia U.S. District Court (1997-99). Her other legal experience includes working in various settings with such issues as housing discrimination, insider trading and the right to appeal interlocutory orders.

At Georgia Law, she will teach Criminal Law, Sentencing and Evidence.

"I decided to study law because someone once told me that in order to achieve change in the world, you occasionally need a good two-by-four, and litigation is that two-by-four. I wanted to learn to wield it."

Kevin Jon Heller

Assistant Professor of Law

B.A., M.A., New School for Social Research

M.A., Duke University

J.D., Stanford University

Kevin Jon Heller joined Georgia Law as an assistant professor specializing in evidence, criminal law – both domestic and international – and legal theory.

Heller's legal scholarship includes: "Beyond the Reasonable Man? A Sympathetic but Critical Assessment of the Use of Subjective Standards of Reasonableness in Self-Defense and Provocation Cases" in the American Journal of Criminal Law, "Whatever Happened to Proof Beyond a Reasonable Doubt? Of Drug Conspiracies, Overt Acts, and United States v. Shabani" in the Stanford Law Review and "Lying in Wait for the Good-Faith Exception" in The Champion.

After law school, Heller clerked for Judge William C. Canby Jr. of the Ninth Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals, where he worked exclusively on appeals involving the death penalty, criminal law and procedure, and civil rights. He then practiced criminal defense in Los Angeles, specializing in homicide, drug-trafficking and racketeering cases. Prior to joining Georgia Law, Heller wrote and produced television shows in Hollywood for four years.

Heller will teach International Criminal Law, Evidence and Property Law.

"I want to inspire students to think about what the law should be – not just what it is – and to give them the knowledge and rhetorical skills to achieve their legal and political goals, whatever they may be."

VISITING ASSISTANT PROFESSOR

Kelly A. Casey

Visiting Assistant Professor

B.S., Georgia Institute of Technology

J.D., University of Georgia

Specializing in patent law and intellectual property, Kelly A. Casey has joined Georgia Law as a visiting assistant professor. Casey occupies a one-year teaching position aimed at aiding superior Georgia Law graduates in gaining entry into the teaching profession.

Casey developed her expertise in patent law while working for Finnegan, Henderson, Farabow, Garrett & Dunner in Atlanta, where she focused primarily on the appellate litigation of intellectual property matters before the Federal Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals. She also clerked for Judge William C. Bryson of the Federal Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals and Judge J.L. Edmondson of the 11th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals.

Her written scholarship includes “Exxon Chemical Patents, Inc. v. Lubrizol Corp.: The Federal Circuit Sets Unreasonable Standards for Chemical Composition Inventions” in the Georgia Law Review.

Casey graduated first in her class at Georgia Law in 1998, where she served on the Georgia Law Review and was inducted into the Order of the Coif.

At Georgia Law, she will teach Patent Law and International Intellectual Property.

“I enjoy the academic environment, especially the give-and-take of law classes and the freedom to explore the theoretical side of the law.”

The Visiting Assistant Professor Position for a Georgia Law Graduate was created in 2002 to assist exceptional former students in entering the ranks of legal academia.
