I. SUMMARY

One mark of a quality school is the leadership it produces. The University of Georgia School of Law is unequaled as a producer of Georgia's leaders. In the past seventy-nine years, eight of the state's governors have been Georgia law graduates. Within this same period, 28 LL.B. degree earners from the University of Georgia have served as United States representatives, and six U.S. senators in the last 100 years were Georgia law graduates.

Georgia graduates comprise a majority on both the state's appeals court (seven of nine judges on the Georgia Court of Appeals) and its highest court (four of seven justices on the Georgia Supreme Court).

The present governor, George D. Busbee, and the state's Attorney General, Arthur K. Bolton, are Georgia Law School graduates.

When these state leaders were beginning their career preparations, the Georgia Law School represented an attractive option for a legal education. This is even more the case today. With a high quality program of study at reasonable cost, the school continues to be attractive to the best young people that Georgia and the region have to offer.

I. Student Body

Applications to American Law Schools have dropped substantially this year in what many admissions officers see as the start of a long-lasting trend. A survey of some 40 law schools conducted by the National Law Journal revealed a 14% decline in applications nationwide for next year's entering class. Our own survey of Southeastern law schools showed an average decline of 20%. The Educational Testing Service reports 6,000 fewer LSAT registrants this year than last. The numbers paint a clear picture - a serious application downtrend has arrived in law school admissions.

The only national statistic continuing to show strength in law school admissions is the number of women applying. In just a few short years the percentage of women has gone from 12% of law school enrollment in 1971 to nearly 30% in 1978. This statistic, however, is also likely to level off. The number of minority students enrolled in law schools, although doubled since 1971, has already leveled off. This past year showed no appreciable increase in the number of minorities enrolled nationally as compared with the previous year.

The Georgia Law School's admissions experience is significantly different from this national decline. In this year of a large national downturn in applications, Georgia has attracted its largest applicant pool in five years. We anticipate approximately 1,460 applications and an entering class with an average LSAT score of approximately 646 and an undergraduate grade point average of approximately 3.50. This compares with an entering grade point average of 3.46 and LSAT score of 646 for last fall's class. The School has been able to buck this national trend because of the availability of substantial educational resources and the exceptionally low tuition costs at Georgia in comparison to other schools. It is expected that top quality state institutions like Georgia, Michigan, Texas, and others will continue to offer a strong competitive advantage over private schools. We are confident that the Georgia Law School will continue to play a vital role in the development of Georgia and the Southeast.

Georgia law students continue to perform well on the Georgia Bar Examination. Of the 186 graduates this year, 158 took the Georgia Bar Exam in July, 1978 or February, 1979. Of the 158 taking the exam, 154 were successful for a passing percentage of 98.1.

The state bar rules permitting students to take the test two quarters before graduation continues as a cause for concern among the law faculty. This rule has had a deleterious impact on the third year academic program, particularly in such activities as law review and moot court. Unfortunately, we have been unable to convince the Supreme Court of the detrimental effect of the early bar exam. However, the State Bar Board of Governors has recommended a change.

Georgia's Moot Court program has continued at a very high level by entering teams in national and regional competitions. One notable win was the southeastern regional round of the Jessup International Competition. Georgia's team went on to the national finals in Washington at the American Society of International Law meeting where their brief was judged best in the nation. Team oralists placed among the top ten of the 42 competitors.

The Intrastate Team returned the trophies to Athens again this year after their second win in a row over the Moot Court teams of Emory and Mercer. A team of Georgia students has been selected to compete in the national advocacy competition of the American Bar Association at its annual meeting in Dallas in August.

The Georgia Law Review produced a multi-student note on "Developments in Georgia Law" which surveyed the Georgia law of debtor and creditor rights. In another issue, the editors built a symposium issue around a Sibley lecture topic--the right of privacy. The Georgia Journal of International and Comparative Law featured an article on the Law of the Sea in its first issue this year, and its second issue featured the first comprehensive study of the "Tokyo Round" of trade negotiations, generally regarded as the most significant development in trade law since World War II.

The employment status of our graduates is encouraging. Our Placement Office reports that 63% of the Class of 1979 had secured employment as of the week of graduation. The national average for those who have obtained employment by graduation date is 60%.

Of the 119 employed graduates, 111 (93.2%) are located in the Southeastern United States, with 99 (89%) of those practicing in Georgia.

During the academic year from September through June, 1979, the Law Placement office scheduled 175 on-campus interview sessions for prospective employers of Georgia law graduates.

This compares with 85 campus visits scheduled during this same time period the year before.

II. Faculty and Instructional Program

The research work of the Georgia law faculty continues to receive national attention. Professor Ron Ellington recently completed a study of sanctions for discovery abuse, an empirical research project sponsored by the U.S. Department of Justice. As a result of this work, Ellington has been invited to spend the 1979-80 academic year working with the Justice Department as scholar-in-residence. Professor Bill Futrell will also spend the 1979-80 academic year in Washington, D.C. He was selected to participate in the prestigious Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Program of the Smithsonian Institution. Associate professor Paul Kurtz prepared two analyses on domestic relations issues involved in two cases presented last fall before the U.S. Supreme Court. One concerned the rights of fathers of illegitimate children and the other was related to the rights of husbands to alimony. When the cases were decided, Kurtz' commentary was widely quoted by the news wire services and by nationally-syndicated columnists.

To further the research of faculty and students, the School entered into a contract for the installation in June of the LEXIS computer system. The faculty and students also have access to NAARS as part of the same system. This service stores court decisions and other data which will enhance basic legal research. The LEXIS/NAARS system is jointly used by the Law School and the School of Accounting in the College of Business Administration.

The LEXIS system coincides with other user services being established by Erwin Surrency, newly-appointed law librarian. Surrency came to the Law School in January after a distinguished record of service as head law librarian and professor on the Temple University faculty. Sewell Brumby, Law Librarian for seventeen years, retired June 30, 1978 but continued to administer the library until January. The faculty and students honored Brumby last May and expressed to him appreciation for his guidance in building the collection from 42,000 volumes to the 17th largest law library in the nation. The quality of his leadership during this critical period was unexcelled.

Many of the volumes and microfilm now stored in boxes in the present library will have a new home within the next two years. The Board of Regents has authorized construction of a new law library annex. The new 25,000 square foot three-story facility will house 106,000 volumes and will usher in a new era of instructional methods for the School. Simulated clinical exercises will be available in a fully equipped audio-visual resources center.

III. Educational Services

The Institute for Continuing Legal Education in Georgia continues to provide an excellent service through its seminars and study materials for Georgia lawyers. The demand for its programs is at an all-time high. The 29 programs conducted this year attracted 4,500 registrants. A new assistant director, Colonel Barney Brennan, formerly Commandant of the Army's Judge Advocate General's School, has been hired to assist Jim Curtis.

Bobby D. Bryant has had to reduce his work load due to major health problems.

The Institute for Continuing Judicial Education in Georgia has now completed its first year of operation. During this period the Institute presented 16 programs to judges and court workers throughout the State. The ICJE staff has done a good job in gearing up for a full schedule of workshops and training materials in a short period of time.

The Rusk Center for International and Comparative Law has completed its first 22 months of operation with an impressive set of studies on export and trade issues. Principal researchers of the Center testified several times before committees of the U.S. House and Senate, and produced a substantial number of articles and monographs.

IV. Funds Development

The Talmadge-Law School Development Fund campaign was conducted with a fulltime staff of two this year. Harold Young, project director, became an employee of the University of Georgia Development Office with continuing responsibility to the Talmadge Fund in March, 1979. He had directed the campaign as consultant with Community Services Bureau, Inc. from August, 1977 until this spring. The capital campaign is now above the $2 million mark. It is anticipated that the goal of $3 million will be reached by the end of this year.

A giving emphasis program which reaches beyond the Talmadge Fund is the newly created "BURD DOG CLUB." Those law alumni who have volunteered for this club will help identify major donors and encourage those donors to name the School of Law in their wills and trust documents. Another area of giving is the living memorial opportunity. A booklet has been prepared which lists various needs and the amounts which would be required to meet them.

The Law School Fund, which results from the annual giving campaign, was boosted this year by the School's first Telethon. The three-day calling session was staged in January, and it drew good support from alumni who had not yet begun their annual giving habit. This year the annual giving campaign recorded a new high of $39,695.

V. Other Activities

The Law School Student Lounge was refurbished this spring. Carpeting, draperies, lamps and a new television set were installed. The new furnishings were a gift from a group of 52 alumni and friends of the School who responded to a funds campaign initiated by Pope McIntire, law graduate of the Class of 1947.

Because the School of Law is a place where so much is happening, and because it is hard to relate the activities here to our external audiences, a film has been produced this year. The 20-minute color film, completed in October, is an informational tool which can be used for admissions recruitment and for alumni audiences. It was directed by Gwen Wood and produced by the University's Instructional Resources Center.

The film was shown to visiting groups on campus as well as to alumni groups in Washington, D.C., and Orlando, Florida.

These are two law alumni chapters which have been formed within the last two years. The Florida chapter of Georgia graduates meets wherever the Florida Bar Association meeting is held.

Last February the School was the recipient of a very valuable set of papers written by Chief Justice Joseph H. Lumpkin, co-founder of the Georgia Law School. The unpublished collection consisted of three decades of letters written by Lumpkin to his daughter Callie. The letters were bequeathed to the School in the will of Carolyn King Ragan of Atlanta, great granddaughter of Justice Lumpkin. The letters are now in the Law Library archives and will receive careful attention by historical researchers who will then share information about Lumpkin's life and the system of law which then existed.

Another gift to the School this year was the portrait of Ellis G. Arnall, 1931 law graduate and former governor of Georgia. The portrait, a gift from the law firm of Arnall, Golden and Gregory in Atlanta, is one of three governors' portraits now in the School's possession. Portrait committees have been formed to finance the portraits of the other four governors of this century who were Georgia law graduates. They will hang in a special "Hall of Governors" near the present faculty library.

The Hall of Governors is one tangible way in which the accomplishments of our graduates can be recognized. It will also be a reminder that we must manage our resources well and seek out the best quality in our faculty and in our academic offering in order to continue preparing University of Georgia law graduates for positions of public leadership.

II. EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

2. Objectives

The operating Admissions Policy should address and seek to accomplish the following objectives:

- a. Admitting those students who will benefit most from the educational experience.
- b. Admitting students with diverse backgrounds so that various perspectives are vented during the educational process. "Diverse backgrounds" may include, but not be limited to, geographical, educational, cultural and socioeconomic differences.
- c. Admitting students who will, upon graduation, pursue legal careers by serving underrepresented communities.
- d. Admitting students who will, upon graduation, pursue legal professional opportunities in the State of Georgia.
- e. Admitting students who are legal residents of Georgia.
- f. Admitting students who will meet the acceptable character fitness standards of the Bar.

3. Financial Aid

The financial assistance available at the University of Georgia School of Law was just over $200,000 for the 1978-79 academic year. Surveys conducted by the Student Bar Association indicate that 50% of the entering class need financial assistance, while available funds enable only 15% to receive aid. The most immediate opportunity for improvement in the financial assistance area is through an expanded alumni giving program. This past year the Admissions Committee attempted to notify applicants of scholarship awards at the time acceptance decisions were made. It was felt that more timely notice would enhance our competitive advantage with other schools.

A list with a description of the various sources of financial assistance follows:

a. Vasser Woolley Scholarships

These scholarships honor Vasser Woolley, Jr. who was born in Atlanta in 1896 and was killed in the Paris air crash in 1962 which took the lives of 122 Atlantans. Although he never studied law, Mr. Woolley had a high regard for attorneys as wise counselors and able advocates. This active Georgia businessman distinguished himself in the fields of textiles and real estate, and often expressed his reliance on the type of leadership provided by outstanding attorneys. A graduate of Georgia Tech in 1917 with a B.S. in chemical engineering, Mr. Woolley was president of Seydel-Woolley and Company.

b. Hughes Spalding Scholarships

These scholarships honor the late Hughes Spalding, Law class of 1910. Admitted to the Georgia Bar in 1910, Hughes Spalding practiced law in Atlanta until his death in 1969. He was a dedicated supporter of education in Georgia as chairman of the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia and as president of the University Alumni Society.

c. Woodruff Scholarships

The purpose of the Woodruff Scholarships is to attract highly qualified Georgians to the study of law at the University of Georgia. The School of Law was assisted in this purpose in 1973 by a gift of over one-half million dollars from an anonymous donor to the University of Georgia Foundation. The Foundation in turn established a law school scholarship fund with this grant and directed that the income from the fund be used to finance a number of awards each year to be known as Woodruff Scholarships.

d. Bryant T. Castellow Memorial Scholarship Fund

This scholarship fund was established in memory of the late U.S. Congressman from Georgia's Third District. Representative Castellow served in Congress during the New Deal Era, where he introduced measures which greatly improved the agricultural economy of his region. He graduated from the School of Law in 1897. The Castellow fund provides scholarships based on demonstrated ability and financial need.

e. Frank A. Constangy Memorial Scholarship

This scholarship was established in 1972 to honor Mr. Frank A. Constangy, a distinguished Georgian who obtained both his bachelor and law degrees from the University of Georgia.

f. W.R. McDonald Portrait Fund

This fund was created for the benefit of handicapped students enrolled in the School of Law. Mrs. W.R. McDonald was primarily interested in aiding those law students who were blind or visually handicapped.

g. J. Rene Hawkins Memorial Scholarship

This scholarship was established in 1972 by the Trustees of the Southern Federal Tax Institute and is awarded to a third year student with a demonstrated interest in tax who intends to practice in the Southeast.

h. Milton M. Ratner Scholarship and Loan Fund

This fund was established in 1973 by the Milton M. Ratner Foundation of Detroit, Michigan. Ratner, a Detroit residential builder, lived near Calhoun, Georgia, upon retirement. This fund provides scholarships and loans to law students, based on demonstrated academic ability and financial need.

i. Claude B. Barrett Fund

This fund was established in 1969 to honor Mr. Claude B. Barrett of Harris County, Texas.

j. B. Hugh Burgess Fund

This fund makes available financial assistance to a needy DeKalb County resident. This was created by a stipulation in the will of Mr. B. Hugh Burgess in June, 1973.

k. Robert Troutman Scholarship

This fund is in honor of Robert B. Troutman, Sr. It was established to grant aid to the Editor-in-Chief of the Georgia Law Review.

l. Law School Composite Fund

The Law School fund is a part of and administered by the Georgia Foundation. It is supported by annual alumni giving.

m. Georgia Beer Wholesaler's Association Award

An award made to a Georgian who intends to practice in Georgia upon graduation.

n. Welborn B. Cody Memorial Scholarship

This scholarship fund was established in 1976 in memory of Welborn B. Cody, a member of the firm of Kilpatrick, Cody, Rogers, McClatchey and Regenstein. Cody was a 1921 graduate of the Georgia Law School. Scholarship recipient selections are based on the quality of high motivation as well as financial need.

o. American Bar Association--Council on Legal Education Opportunity Scholarship

A federally funded program established in 1969, seeking to provide economically disadvantaged students an opportunity to attend an accredited law school. CLEO provides an annual living stipend to those program graduates who continue in Law School.

p. Lumpkin Scholarship Fund

This scholarship fund was once a part of the Foundation. Established in 1970, it is now used for scholarships and financial aid for needy law students. This fund is also used to enable students to attend summer school at the Hague Academy of International Law.

B. Enrollment

1. Average and cumulative enrollment for regular sessions extending from September to June:

J.D.	183

b. Summer Session, August, 1979:

J.D.	3

C. Clinical Experience

1. Legal Aid and Defender Society

During 1978-79 the Legal Aid and Defender Society, along with the Prisoner Legal Counseling Project, continued to expand. More than 300 students participated in the work of the program during the year for course credit.

The work of the Defender portion of the program expanded into Oconee County upon the request of the local bar organization, the Oconee County Commissioners, and the judges of the Western Judicial Circuit. The additional work pushed the number of criminal cases handled to more than 950 for the year, a number which includes all types of crimes from minor traffic cases to capital cases.

During the same period, more than 400 civil cases were handled including cases involving landlord-tenant disputes, domestic relations, civil commitment, social security benefits, debt problems, name changes, adoptions, and assistance in probating small estates.

More emphasis was placed on assistance to and supervision of students who are admitted to practice under the Third Year Practice Act. Ms. Vicki Affleck, a recent law school graduate, was hired part-time to work with this group in assisting them in preparing their cases for court.

Other students were required to discuss any case they sought to open with one of the lawyer-instructors prior to opening the case. Emphasis was placed on interviewing, fact gathering and extra-judicial solution to problems.

Personnel from the Prisoner Legal Counseling Project made more than 390 visits to penal institutions throughout the State to provide legal services to prisoners. Extensive use was made of law students in the interviewing process and in counseling prisoners.

The work of the Legal Aid and Defender Society was facilitated this year through a full complement of personnel and the addition of a part-time employee. This individual (Ms. Affleck) will become a full time staff member during the next academic year--thus permitting more "one-on-one" work with the students enrolled in the program.

Attempts are being made to introduce time-saving devices to expedite the work of students. One of these is a micro-fische reader which was recently purchased. This machine uses micro-fische listings provided by the Department of Offender Rehabilitation to permit students to locate a prisoner within a matter of seconds as opposed to days when the method involved letter inquiries.

2. The Prosecutorial Clinic

The eight years of operation of a prosecutorial clinic has been marked by a refinement and enlargement of student activities. Students have more appearances in court and more writing opportunities. Their seminar meetings contain new and more varied topics.

The Clinic continues to operate based on the premise that legal education cannot be complete without attention to the practical aspect of trial practice. The prosecution has remained a successful vehicle for obtaining clinical experiences for law students. Besides the varied activities available, prosecution experience offers them an exercise in carrying the burden of proof, a responsibility which requires preparation and investigation. It remains excellent training for understanding evidence, criminal law, criminal procedure and trial practice.

In 1978-79, 40 second and third year students were enrolled. Approximately 50 students wrote tryout memos seeking the 21 positions, maintaining the usual 2.5:1 demand-to-supply ratio.

Second year students investigated 570 cases in 1978-79. These investigations emphasize fact-finding, witness evaluation, communication, and legal research. All second year students wrote appellate briefs to the Georgia Court of Appeals, and most participants wrote additional internal memos of law. Additional writing instruction has been necessary for many of the second year members.

Third year students concentrated on courtroom experiences. Twenty-six Superior Court cases involved clinic members appearing in one degree or another as the State's prosecutor. Not every student tried a felony, but many tried more than one. Based on the student's individual experience, some examined witnesses while others were able to try the entire case from opening statement to final argument. Almost every case tried by the director involved student assistance, and the capacity to increase student trial participation was dramatically increased by the willingness of assistant district attorneys Jim Skipper and Robert Elkins to incorporate student assistance in their work.

Each third year student wrote a second appellate brief, except for five students who co-authored a 77-page brief and a 60-page brief in the appeals of two murder co-defendants. The quality of these briefs was excellent and showed the kinds of writing skills expected of senior students.

Other clinical activities included multiple grand jury appearances for every third year student, probation revocation hearings, an automobile forfeiture civil hearing, and hearings on motions to suppress.

Overall, the combined efforts of local judges, attorneys, the District Attorney and his staff, the clinic staff and the students have made this school year one of extraordinary achievement in strong clinical education.

All Prosecutorial Clinic students met weekly with the Director for a period of formalized instruction. Guest speakers were utilized during the sessions.

During fall quarter 1978, a study of indictments, including a drafting exercise, was presented. Additionally, local court reporters gave demonstrations on how to handle evidence, perfect the records, and use the court reporter's skills to the best advantage. Georgia Court of Appeals clerk William Smith, a 1976 Georgia law graduate, detailed the workings of an appellate judge, and explained how to write an effective appellate brief. New students received orientation on the criminal justice system. A two-part series on hearsay evidence was presented to simplify traditional evidentiary problems.

During winter quarter, an intensive series on how to prepare a case for trial occupied the entire quarter's meetings. Printed materials and checklists and examples were the teaching tools. Improved student case preparation has been observed since this series.

During spring quarter, a series on cross examination was presented by Assistant District Attorney Robert Elkins (Class of 1976), based on a seminar sponsored by ICLE. Recent classes have focused on new legislation and witness privileges.

3. Legal Research and Writing

The first year legal writing program reflects the faculty's intention to substantially improve the quality of legal studies at the University of Georgia. LLM candidates assisted the program director in teaching the basic tenets of research and in grading the student product. This enabled the Law School to cease using third year students as assistants and significantly improved the quality and professionalism of the course. In the coming year, use of student assistants, whether JD or LLM candidates, will be eliminated completely, and two full time instructors will teach and supervise the course.

Professor Erwin Surrency, the law librarian, will offer an "Introduction to Law" dimension to the program, an element that, until now, has been missing. After this, the students will be given an edited transcript of an actual case before an appellate court. They will be required to develop the facts, analyze the issues, and advise the client. They then will write a mock brief and argue their position before a moot court. Whereas in the past, students were given the opportunity to present their argument only once before entering the Russell (Law Day) Competition, next year they will do so twice. Also during the course of the year, distinguished practitioners and judges will be invited to speak to the class about advocacy from their perspectives.

The goals of the Legal Research and Writing course remain as they have always been--to provide the first year student with a foundation for scholarly research and analysis and an appreciation of the role of law and the lawyer in our society.

D. Graduate Studies

The graduate studies program, which has not been active in several years, had five students enrolled at some time during the past academic year. Three American law school graduates were enrolled along with two foreign students. The foreign students withdrew for personal reasons during the school year. The three American graduates, who earned their degrees at Pittsburgh, New Mexico and Miami law schools, were awarded assistantships to subsidize their educational expenses. In return for these assistantships, they were instructors in the legal research and writing program for first year students. No LL.M. degrees were awarded during this academic year, although two of the graduate students are continuing work on their master's papers and may complete them in the near future.

Although the legal research and writing program was very effectively operated this year, the chairman of the graduate studies committee and the Dean have agreed that the pressure of completing a master's degree and working as an instructor is too great. In the future, the research and writing program will be run through the use of post-doctoral fellows who are not degree candidates. The graduate program looks forward to gaining autonomy from the University's Graduate School in the administration of the admissions process and hopes to focus its attention on LL.M. candidates who will undertake projects in cooperation with the Rusk Center.

E. Evaluation

1. Academic Performance

Class of 1979

In September of 1976, 210 students registered as members of the Class of 1979. In September 1977, 190 registered and in September 1978, 189.

Including transfer students, 186 received their degrees in June 1979 or August 1979. This includes a retention rate of 88.5% of the original first year class. Three of the original first class members will complete their degrees in 1979-80. The final retention rate for the class of 1979 will therefore be 90%.

Class of 1980

In September 1977, 231 students registered as members of the Class of 1980. In September 1978, 218 registered and in the spring 214 took final examinations -- a retention rate of 92.6%.

Class of 1981

In September 1978, 212 students registered as members of the Class of 1981, and in June, 205 sat for examinations. Until all examinations are graded and cumulative averages computed, it is not known how many first year students have maintained the necessary academic standing to continue law studies. The retention rate for the first class can be determined at the time of fall quarter registration.

E. Evaluation continued . . .

2. Bar Exam Results

Under the provisions of an act passed by the Georgia General Assembly in January 1974, third year law students are eligible to take the Georgia Bar Examination if they have completed at least seven quarters of law studies leading to the J.D. degree.

The Class of 1979 therefore, is comprised of December, March and June graduates who could have passed the examination in either July 1978, February 1979, or July 1979, and still be considered as having become a member of the State Bar of Georgia during the year of his or her graduation.

Of the 186 seniors who graduated in December 1978, March 1979, June 1979 or August 1979, 158 took the July 1978 or the February 1979, Georgia Bar Examination. The July 1979 Bar Exam has not yet been administered. The results are as follows:

1. Number of Georgia law students who sat for Georgia Bar Examination in July, 1978:	18
2. Number of Georgia law students who sat for Georgia Bar Examination in February, 1979:	140
Total:	158
3. Number of seniors who passed July 1978 Bar Exam:	17
4. Number of seniors who passed February 1979 Bar Exam:	138*
Total:	155

2. Bar Exam Results

5. Number of seniors who failed
July 1978 Bar Exam:	1
6. Number of seniors who failed
February 1979 Bar Exam:	3
	Total: 4
7. Percentage of graduates who took the Georgia Bar Examination in July 1978 or
February 1979 and passed it:	98.1%

* includes one senior who took exam in July and failed, but sat for February exam and passed.

IV. LAW LIBRARY

A. Summary

The academic year of 1978-79 has been a significant year in the history of the Law Library. This year represented the first full year of operation as a separate institution under the direct administration of the Dean of the Law School rather than as a part of the University Library. Because of this change, it has been a year of adjustment as the staff has come to depend upon its own resources, establish its own policies and integrate its operation into those of the Law School. New pieces of equipment have been added to render support services formerly performed in the main library. This separation from the University Library will be viewed in future years as a wise decision as the Law Library operates as a supporting unit to a professional school that depends upon books to a greater extent than any other profession. This separation will enable the collection to reflect changes in curriculum and other programs developed by the Law School.

The change in leadership of any institution is an event which should not go unnoticed. Sewell Brumby, the Law Librarian from 1961, retired June 30, 1978 but continued to administer the Law Library until January 2, 1979, when the new Law Librarian assumed his duties. It was under Colonel Brumby's leadership that the Law Library developed from a medium-sized Law School Library to the position of seventeenth in number of volumes of all the law schools in this country. The present Law School community is indebted to Sewell Brumby for his contribution to this increased national recognition of the University of Georgia Law School.

The most exciting development in the library was the awarding of a contract for the installation of the LEXIS computer research program in June, 1979. The cost of this service is shared with the Accounting School of the UGA College of Business Administration which has the use of these facilities for approximately half of the time. Since the computer has not been installed for enough of the academic year for the staff to develop expertise with it, programs are being developed whereby the law students can be trained in this new technology.

B. The Collection

On June 30th, the library contained approximately 254,451 physical books, 2730 reels of microfilm, and 135,441 microfiche. This represents a collection of approximately 298,000 volumes. [See attached summary.]

Previous annual reports have commented upon the coverage of the collection, which is generally good. However, there are a few major sets of American legal materials to which the library does not subscribe. The library staff is sensitive to placing orders for books which will entail large annual continuation costs because of the over-commitment of the present budget to continuations. Approximately 83% of the total budget goes to continuations, leaving only 17% of the budget for purchases of new titles. The Library staff has made every effort to cut needless duplication and additional money has been given the Law Library to correct this imbalance.

The total budget for the law library during the current academic year has been $527,209 with an addition of $5,120 from outside sources for a total of $543,329. Of this amount, $276,843.01 was expended for library materials. In addition, the library received $2,053.51 in credits with dealers which were used. [See attached summary.]

The collection, on the whole, is a very well developed one but it has some obvious areas which could be strengthened. Such an area is the compilation of statutes or Codes of the other states. One way of supplying these gaps is to get the material in microform. The law library does not presently possess adequate microfilm equipment or an adequate area where the film can be stored and used. This is a deficiency which will be remedied with the new building. In the meanwhile, the library shall continue to expand the microfilm collection.

Presently, it is not possible to house the entire law collection in the present building. During the current academic year, the plans for an annex were approved and the contract for the construction will be awarded during the late summer or early fall. This building will make possible the organization of the collection in one building. Currently, approximately 45,000 volumes are either on shelves in the University library in an area under the control of the Law Library, and some titles are in boxes. The volumes in boxes are known as the J22 collection which were titles purchased when the library received the large grant of money in 1966 to increase its holdings. Some of these books have been placed on shelves in the University Library and are being arranged in alphabetical order. Cataloging of this material is done when staff time is available for this purpose.

New computer technology is causing a change in cataloging procedures. One of the most significant changes is the generation of a catalog of the holdings of a library on a computer printout, replacing the old card catalog. It is expected that during the new academic year 1979-1980 it will be possible for this Law Library to install the RLIN system of computer cataloging. The installation of this computer is expected to have an impact on the output and the effectiveness of the cataloging staff. Some of the clerical work will be eliminated and searches by the professional staff will be reduced. Catalog cards will be generated by the computer but as the data base of holdings expands, the present card catalog will be discontinued.

C. Library Staff

The Law Library is fortunate to have a capable and dedicated staff. All the senior staff members have enjoyed a long tenure in this library and have played a significant role in its development. Jose Pages has administered a significant amount of acquisitions money and has been instrumental in selecting many of the titles which have gone into the collection. Jose Rodriguez heads the public service section of the library and is respected by students and faculty for his graciousness in extending his help to those who need it. Carol Ramsey heads the cataloging section of the library and it was under her guidance that the present classification system was applied to the collection.

The appointment of two professional librarians to the staff should be noted. Hazel Johnson has been appointed as Assistant Public Service Librarian whose main duties will be to develop the microfilm collection and extend its use. She will be responsible for training and administering the computer in the library. Martha Hampton comes from Gordon College as the Assistant Acquisitions Librarian. Her primary responsibility, in addition to assisting Mr. Pages, is the cataloging of serial titles and the ordering and processing of them.

D. Collection Maintenance and Development

There has been considerable reshelving and readjustment of the library's collection. The section of periodicals known as the Bar Journal has been eliminated and most of the titles have been incorporated into the periodical section on the main floor. Here all the titles have been arranged in alphabetical order and contain those periodicals which have been, are, or will be, indexed in the INDEX TO LEGAL PERIODICALS. The public service staff feels that this will enhance the use of this collection now that they are gathered together in one place rather than being classified throughout the rest of the collection. The English LAW REPORTS and the textbooks have been brought into the library from storage in the University Library building. In doing this, the older editions of these English texts have been left in storage and only the last edition has been brought over. All the major national form books will be concentrated on the first floor.

The current academic year has been a transitional one, for the Law Library at the University of Georgia moved from the traditional collection of books and a few microform to the era of computers and an expanded multimedia collection. This demands a different type of training for the staff and as one observer has stated, the librarian must be able to use a screwdriver in this new electronic era.

Will future years be a let-down in the operation? Because the law is dynamic and ever changing, the law library will be affected. New forms of legal publications such as administrative codes will come to play an increasing role in legal development. An increasing flood of new informational type publications will appear--some of which will be expected to be found on library shelves. Such volumes will reflect new areas of the law which are predominately governed by administrative regulations and administrative actions. All these developments will tax the ingenuity of any library administrator in obtaining the material, housing and servicing it. The computer and other technological advances will not completely replace the printed book for the foreseeable future. Hopefully, the Law Library at the University of Georgia will come to be one of the leaders in these innovations.

V. RESEARCH AND SERVICE PROGRAMS

A. Continuing Legal Education

The University of Georgia School of Law continues its extensive financial and professional support of the Institute of Continuing Legal Education in Georgia, which was organized in 1965 by the Law Schools of the University of Georgia, Emory, and Mercer, and the State Bar of Georgia. James W. Curtis, a member of the Law School administrative faculty, continues as Director of the Institute, supported by Bobby D. Bryant who serves as the Assistant Director, four full-time and several part-time employees. Approximately 250 lawyers each year also serve as writers, planners and speakers in the continuing legal education program.

From July 1, 1978, to June 30, 1979, the Institute presented 29 programs in 17 areas of the law attended by 4,500 registrants. Two programs were held at the Georgia Center for Continuing Education in Athens, and the other seminars in the cities throughout Georgia which make these programs available to every lawyer with a minimum of travel.

The faculty of the University of Georgia School of Law continued to play a leading role in continuing legal education. As consultants, speakers, and writers, their contributions were indispensable in making this program a success. The following faculty members' participation should be mentioned:

Dean J. Ralph Beard, University Professor of Law, is a member of the Institute's Board of Trustees and has actively participated in Board meetings. He serves on various committees of the Institute and contributes substantially to the decision making process. Dean Beard also participates in planning sessions for continuing legal education programs. Dean Beard welcomed and made introductory remarks at the Eleventh Labor Relations Institute in Atlanta on December 7th and 8th, 1978. He was also a member of the Planning Committee which recommended the Institute's program agenda for the forthcoming program year, July 1, 1979 - June 30, 1980. At the Law School Faculties and Bar Meeting held at Emory University March 30-31, 1979 Dean Beard spoke to the assembled faculty members, and bar leaders on "The New Rules For Admission to the Georgia Bar." Substantial recommendations were made for the strengthening of the bar.

Professor R. Perry Sentell, Jr., Regents' Professor of Law, spoke at the 25th Institute for City and County Attorneys held in Athens, September 15th and 16th, 1978 on "Recent Judicial Developments Affecting City and County Attorneys." Professor Sentell also serves as editor for the Georgia Lawyer's Basic Practice Handbook.

Professor Verner F. Chaffin, Fuller Callaway Professor of Law, spoke at the 24th Estate Planning Institute held in Athens on February 9th and 10th, 1979, on "Current Developments: Fiduciary Law."

Professor of Law Spoke at the Seminar on Admiralty Law held in Atlanta on June 22nd and 23rd, 1979 on "Three Years Under The Federal Evidence Rules."

Professor C. Ronald Ellington serves as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Institute of Continuing Legal Education in Georgia.

B. Institute of Continuing Judicial Education of Georgia

The Institute of Continuing Judicial Education of Georgia has the responsibility for development and implementation of a comprehensive program of continuing professional development and training for the judicial branch of Georgia's state government. Established initially by the Judicial Council of Georgia and the University of Georgia School of Law to provide training for judges and court support personnel of the courts of record of Georgia, the Institute will become an administrative arm of the Supreme Court effective July 1, 1979 and will operate under the overall direction of the Judicial Council of Georgia. The Institute is governed by a Board of Trustees of which the Dean of the University of Georgia School of Law is a member. The Director and his staff are employees of the University of Georgia School of Law.

In planning and presenting its program, the Institute cooperates with the Administrative Office of the Courts, the Council of Superior Court Judges, the State Trial Judges and the Solicitors Association, the Council of Juvenile Court Judges, the Probate Judges Association, the Clerks of Court Section of the Georgia County Officer's Association, the Certified Court Reporters Association of Georgia, and the Georgia Association of Independent Juvenile Courts.

The Institute receives administrative support (facilities, personnel and equipment) from the University of Georgia School of Law and the Judicial Council of Georgia. Program funds are made available by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration through a grant to the Judicial Council of Georgia. This arrangement has enabled the Institute to offer a coordinated education program while it uses its limited state resources for continuing development and improvement of a comprehensive professional education curriculum.

The Institute's potential clientele extends to the judges and support personnel of Georgia's more than 375 courts of record and, in addition, to another 1000 individual non-record courts. To meet the needs of these personnel, the following seminars have been or will be held during FY 1979.

*Projected

Also during the grant period, the Institute provided support for 113 judicial personnel to attend out-of-state programs conducted by the National Judicial College and similar agencies.

The Institute of Continuing Judicial Education of Georgia is committed to:

1. Providing quality in-state training for personnel of the courts of record of Georgia, specifically including judges of courts of record, court administrators, Professional staffs of independent adult and juvenile probation systems, clerks of Court, court reporters and other support personnel.
2. Coordinating with and supporting to the extent feasible the Georgia Justice Courts Training Council in development and implementation of in-state training for justices of the peace and their support personnel.
3. Providing limited financial support for personnel of the judicial system, including justices of the peace, to attend selected out-of-state training programs.
4. Continuing development, implementation and evaluation of the comprehensive judicial training curriculum.

C. Rusk Center for International and Comparative Law

The Rusk Center exists to seek and apply new knowledge on how specific laws and law-related institutions affect basic international trade and development activities. The Center's projects are chosen not only for their academic interest, but also for their immediate and long-term practical impact.

This mix of both the practical and theoretical provides a uniquely valuable experience for law students, the opportunity to become involved on the "cutting edge" of regional and national policy. During the past year, approximately fifty students have had the opportunity to participate substantially in these matters as a result of Rusk Center projects. Where appropriate, the Center uses an interdisciplinary approach to the projects it undertakes. This broad-based approach allows the Center to draw upon, and involve, the full range of University resources.

Some highlights from the Center's projects illustrate its range of activity:

1. The largest current project deals with removing impediments to United States exports. As a resource for Governor Busbee and the National Governor's Association, the Center has spearheaded national efforts to streamline the export licensing process while protecting legitimate national security interests.
2. In a related project, the center is working with state governments to identify and develop export markets for local manufacturers and especially agricultural producers.

3. Another Center project is the Philippines proposal. This research will investigate the role of local governments in the effective transfer and adoption of developmental technology. The project should yield considerable insight on how our own governments can most effectively transfer information and services to assist local areas at minimum cost.

4. Under a proposed contract with the Departments of Labor and Commerce, the Center will be developing a computer-driven communications system using word processors to deliver specific information to individual recipients, and receive responses from those recipients. The first users of this innovative means of communication will be the Governors of the several states.

5. Papers and Publications prepared during the year include:

August 1978	"The Law of the Sea, Federal-State Relations and the Extension of the Territorial Sea," by Milner S. Ball.
September 1978	"Memorandum to the Honorable Robert Strauss from Governor George Busbee regarding the Need for Coordinated Federal-State Action in the Expansion of Foreign Trade," draft prepared by Rusk Center.
October 1978	"A Comprehensive Analysis of The Offshore Implications of the Georgia-South Carolina Boundary Dispute," presented by the staff of the Rusk Center to the Office of the Attorney General, State of Georgia.
January 1979	"Summary: Seminar on Export Trade Regulation, December 13-15, 1978, Athens, Georgia," presented to NGA Advisory Staff on Committee on International Trade and Foreign Relations.
March 1979	"The Problems and Prospects of East-West Trade," by Dr. Sandra Huszagh and Dr. Gary Bertsch. (Paper done in conjunction with College of Business Administration and Department of Political Science.)

- March 1979 "CoCom: East-West Trade: The List Review Process," paper by John McIntyre and Richard Cupitt presented March 23, 1979 at International Studies Association 20th Annual Convention in Toronto, Canada.
- April 1979 "Accommodating National Security, Foreign Policy and Trade in an Interagency Review Process: The Export Licensing Case," paper by John McIntyre presented at the American Society for Public Administration 40th Annual Convention, Baltimore, Maryland, April 4, 1979.
- May 1979 "The Marketing of Laws as an Alternative to Enforcement," presentation by Sandra Huszagh and Fredrick Huszagh at American Marketing Association and Yale University Workshop of Government Marketing, May 3-4, 1979.
- June 1979 Georgia Journal of International and Comparative Law, "A National Export Policy: Tuning U.S. Law, Foreign Policy and Implementation thereof to an Export Priority." The Rusk Center has provided research assistance, advice and support to the student authors.
- August 1979 "Technology Transfer, Export Controls, and East-West Relations," by Gary Bertsch and John McIntyre to be presented at the International Political Science Association annual meeting, August 1979, Moscow U.S.S.R.

6. Activities related to the National Governor's Association Committee include:

- November 1978 In support of President Carter's call for establishment of a national export policy, the National Governor's Association created a Committee for International Trade and Foreign Relations to emphasize state interest in and commitment to America's vitality in international trade and foreign relations. Governor George Busbee appointed Dr. Fredrick Huszagh, Executive Director, Dean Rusk Center, as staff co-chairman, and requested staff support from the Dean Rusk Center. Following are highlights of Center activities generated for the NGA Committee.
- December 1978 An intensive three-day seminar on export regulation for the executive staff members of the Governors sitting on the NGA Committee.

- January 1979 Preparation of draft legislation to amend the Export Administration Act and draft export policy statement, which were unanimously adopted by the nation's governors at their annual winter meeting. Draft legislation introduced as House Bill 3154 in March of 1979.
- Meetings of Governor Busbee and Dr. Huszagh with Secretaries of State, Defense, Treasury, and Agriculture, Ambassador Strauss, Congressman Bingham, and Senator Stevenson to outline federal-state coordination in export reform and promotion.
- January 1979 Preparation of draft questions for Governors meeting with Chinese Vice Premiere Teng and his delegation regarding trade and other areas of interest to the states.
- February 1979 Preparation of export seminar at the National Governors' Association winter meeting which brought together the President, more than 30 of the nation's governors, interested senators and representatives, industry representatives, the Secretary of Commerce, and federal agency officials, to discuss a national export policy.
- March 1979 Preparation of draft testimony for Governor Busbee and Governor Clements (Texas) before Senate Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee on the need for a coherent national export policy.
- Testimony by F.W. Huszagh, J.M. McIntyre and Gary Bertsch before the Subcommittee on International Economic Policy and Trade of the House Foreign Affairs Committee on Export Administration Act reform.
- April 1979 Preparation of draft testimony for Governor Snelling (Vermont) and Robert Mulcahy, Chief of Staff to Governor O'Byrne (New Jersey) before Subcommittee on International Economic Policy and Trade of the House Foreign Affairs Committee on Export Administration Act Reform.
- Testimony by F.W. Huszagh, R.J. Robinson, and J.M. McIntyre before the Subcommittee on International Economic Policy and Trade of the House Foreign Affairs Committee on Export Administration Act reform.

Presentation by M.S. Ball and F.W. Huszagh sponsored by National Governors Association and Smithsonian Institution on federal-state relations in international trade before federal government officials, congressmen, governors, and industry representatives.

Preparation of survey on the impact of current national export policy on U.S. exporting activities in conjunction with the National Governors' Association Committee on International Trade and Foreign Affairs and the University of Georgia College of Business Administration, to be distributed by the nation's governors to firms within their states to collect data demonstrating the need for reform of export laws, regulations, and policies.

Preparation of draft testimony for Governor Ray of Washington and Governor Clinton of Arkansas before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs on legislation amending the Export Administration Act.

Analysis of four major bills introduced by Congressman Bingham, Senator Stevenson, Congressmen Conable and Barber, and the Administration amending the Export Administration Act.

VI. STUDENT AFFAIRS

A. Placement

1. Office Activities

In order to serve the hiring needs of our alumni(ae) and Georgia state bar members; in order to broaden and strengthen the law school's representation and reputation in the state, region and nation; and in order to successfully place our graduates in the legal profession, the Office of Student Affairs and Law Placement continues to move toward an expanded placement program with three objectives: increased employer representation, expanded in-house services, and more extensive office-sponsored programs. These objectives were determined in three ways: by an analysis of existing facilities and procedures; by surveys directed to student needs, faculty preference, and nation-wide law school placement programs; and by discussions with many state law firms.

Increased employer representation, in campus interviews and as contacts for students to pursue, was the Placement Office's most immediate objective. Three approaches were taken toward this end: 1) An invitational campaign was conducted to encourage employers to use Placement Office facilities for recruiting Law School graduates. 2) An active program of personal contact was initiated through travel to Atlanta, throughout the state, and to regional and national cities where employment potential was evident in the firm's specified interest in the University of Georgia or in the firm's record of hiring Georgia graduates. 3) A brochure briefly describing our facilities, curriculum, faculty, students, as well as placement procedures and policies, and an employment directory of third-year students were printed and distributed among employers. Both have proven to be invaluable tools in notifying employers of our curriculum excellence, national faculty stature, and student preparation through academic grade requirements and extra-curricular activities.

The second objective, expanded in-house services, was approached through increased book acquisitions. Reference volumes, employer directories, and government handbooks were acquired while periodical subscriptions were brought to a current status. In addition to reference material, in-house services were expanded through the establishment of cross-referenced files for 1) students - their job preference, experience, and geographical restrictions or preferences; 2) alumni(ae) - seeking assistance in relocation or replacement; 3) alumni(ae) as placement contact in certain geographical location or with specific employer; 4) state and major city firms - description of specialization, services and alumni(ae) employees; and area corporations - their address and recruiting attorney(s).

The third objective, extended office-sponsored programs, demanded vigorous activity in the Student Affairs area. In cooperation with the Younger Lawyer's Section of the Georgia Bar Association, the Placement Office sponsored and conducted forums in which guest attorneys from Northeast Georgia addressed students on 1) Alternative Forms of Legal Practice; on 2) Establishing a Solo Law Practice; and on 3) Specific Procedures of Legal Practice.

Efforts to increase office-sponsored programs also included participation in the Younger Lawyer's Section Committee on Practical Legal Skill Seminars and in the Southeastern Law Placement Consortium. While such placement attempts and student affairs endeavors as outlined reflect a very circumscribed activity of any law school, the results of an effective placement program must be seen as more than simply getting a student a job. Through frequent and systematic personal contact with law school friends and state bar association members, student chances for employment were increased, but service to the state and region was also enhanced.

2. Recruitment

During the academic year September 22, 1978 through May 31, 1979, the Law Placement Office scheduled 175 on-campus interview sessions for prospective employers of Georgia law graduates. In addition, the Law Placement Office offered recruiting assistance to 1,401 employers who interviewed off-campus.

B. Student Activities and Publications

1. Student Bar Association

Significant breakthroughs and new programs highlighted the 1978 - 1979 year for the Student Bar Association. Along with a full agenda of faculty-student functions and student services, these developments enabled the SBA to effectively represent law student interests to the faculty, the administration and the State Bar Association.

The University's Dean of Students office is favorably considering the implementation of the Student Legal Services Program previously proposed. Progress has been made regarding the application required by the State Board of Bar Examiners for Certification of Moral Fitness. Last Spring, the SBA Board of Governors sent a resolution to the Committee on Moral Fitness expressing its concern that certain questions on the application which asked whether applicants had ever sought psychological counseling had no screening value and intruded unnecessarily into personal matters. Responding to this and to similar criticisms from other quarters, the Committee on Moral Fitness has indicated that these questions will be modified or deleted. A more immediate concern was the busy traffic on Lumpkin Street that menaced students on their daily treks to and from the G-Zone parking lot. Acting on a request from the Student Bar Association, the City of Athens installed a crosswalk in time for the start of fall quarter classes.

New programs the SBA initiated included a state-wide legal research service and a private grade notification procedure. The Board of Governors established a faculty student relations committee to provide a formal mechanism for handling differences between faculty and students. The Board adopted a resolution urging the administration to continue and increase its efforts to hire qualified minority and women faculty members. It also formed a committee whose sole function will be to search out and identify potential minority and women teachers and administrators and recommend them to the administration.

Problems that continued from last year were the inadequacy of procedures governing the SBA loan fund, and student dissatisfaction with the quarter system and the number of course hours required for graduation. The new Board found last Spring that of the original $4,000.00 with which the loan fund was established two years ago, all but $300.00 were gone, due to bank charges and overdue loan payments. The Board froze the fund last September and has since collected most of this money back. Pending final development of stiffer loan provisions and late payment charges, the fund will be reopened in the Fall. As was the consensus last year, students favor a reduction in course hours required for graduation, and a transfer to the semester academic calendar. Both of these changes have been recommended by the SBA Curriculum Committee to the Faculty Educational Program Committee.

A potentially serious problem next year will be student parking. With annex construction underway, the faculty lot will not be available for those students working evenings at the law school. They will have to park in G-Zone at night and walk to school through the unlighted Garden Club area. The SBA has written the Public Safety Office of the Campus Police Department alerting it to this hazard and requesting the installation of outdoor lighting.

The SBA again ran numerous programs and services for the school. First year Orientation was organized by joint faculty-student efforts, and an extensive 2 day program was conducted for the new students. During the fall and winter exam periods the SBA attracted numerous students to a brief study break with free refreshments and coffee. Also, the SBA recommended that the library stay open for extended study hours. Students from the Curriculum Committee assisted Mr. Polster in drawing up each quarter's class and exam schedules. The SBA held a course counseling program for first year students prior to their registration for Second year classes. The lounge phone was again funded by the SBA, and a Backgammon table has been added to the lounge furnishings. In addition, the SBA paid for the rental of a TV in the lounge. The SBA allocated funds to The Slip Sheet for an extra issue, to the Moot Court Board to help in hosting the Jessup Cup Regional Competition, and to the student group which brought "Gilbert's Law Summaries", Professor William Rutter to campus. The SBA sponsored the Client Counseling Competition and put up the funds for one-half of the $100.00 first prize.

Each quarter, the SBA sponsored a series of lunchtime seminars which featured various faculty members speaking on topics in which they have particular expertise or interest. The SBA again recognized outstanding members of the faculty. Along with the Younger Lawyers Section of the State Bar, the SBA sponsored the annual Professional Responsibility Award, given to the faculty member who best incorporates the consideration of ethical conflicts and professional responsibility into his or her classes. The recipient, chosen by the various student organization heads after nominations by the Board of Governors, was Professor Milner Ball. The Faculty Book Award goes to the professor who best teaches his or her students to think analytically and critically about what the law is and what it can become. The third year class selected Professor Rick Holmes to be this year's recipient.

Both awards were presented at Law Day activities planned by the Student Bar Association and the Law School Staff. This year's speaker was Judge Griffin Bell, Attorney General of the United States. The annual Law Day Cocktail Party sponsored by the SBA and Law Spouses Association was held at the Lumpkin House.

The SBA again ran its study-aids/used book exchange, the revenue from which funded full tuition scholarships for two students. Another partial scholarship is paid for by proceeds from the heavily used coffee and tea service.

The SBA also arranged a varied calendar of social activities for the students and faculty: the Orientation Beer Party, the Fall Bluegrass Party and picnic, the Barrister's Ball and the Libel Party, at which the faculty was a smash hit. A movie, The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean, was shown during winter quarter and numerous faculty-student mixers were held. As it has done in past year, the SBA sponsored teams in the University intramural football and basketball leagues, and arranged tennis, golf and racquetball tournaments. Additionally, the law school softball league was again organized with 16 teams participating.

Encouraging developments this year were improved faculty-student relations and an increase of interest among the Black law students in SBA functions.

2. Moot Court Program

The Moot Court Program at the University of Georgia School of Law participated in five various state, regional, and national competitions in 1978 - 1979. The program is supervised by a twelve-member executive board, composed of third year students in moot court competition. The chairman of the Moot Court Board, Burt Tillman, was assisted by faculty advisors, Paul Kurtz and Robert Brussack, in administering a highly successful competitive season. Other faculty members were extensively involved in the program through assisting the teams during practice arguments.

The purpose of Moot Court at Georgia is to provide nationwide exposure to second and third year students through participation in competitions, to sponsor and coordinate two intraschool competitions open to all law students, and to assist the instruction of a first year writing program and a second year appellate advocacy program. Additionally, the Moot Court Program brings continued state and national recognition to the University and the Law School. Over the past ten years, Georgia has evolved into a major competitive force.

The National Team, which is composed of third year students who have demonstrated outstanding ability in the second year competitions, consisted of Jane Barwick, David Harrison, and Patricia Warren. The team, coached by Bill deGolian, was edged out in an extremely close regional match by the eventual national runner-up. This was the first time in five years that Georgia did not proceed to national finals.

Georgia's team for the Philip C. Jessup International Competition was composed of Jere Morehead, Audrey Winter, Michael Levensgood, Peter Quist and Betsy Cox and coached by Griff Doyle. At the Southeastern Regionals, hosted by the Georgia Society of International and Comparative Law in Athens the team placed first in the Best Team competition and second, third and fourth in the Best Oralist competition. In winning the regionals, Georgia amassed a perfect 4-0 record beating fine teams from Emory, Duke, U.N.C., and South Carolina. Georgia then proceeded to the National Finals in Washington, D. C. where the award for Best Memorial was captured. The team placed fourth in the nation with the oralists placing fourth, sixth, and eighth in the Best Oralist Competition.

Two Georgia teams were again entered in the Intrastate Moot Court Competition sponsored by the Younger Lawyers Section of the State Bar of Georgia. The teams swept the competition completely closing out Mercer and nearly doing the same to Emory. The team of David Ralston, Bob Wharton, and Cal Martin was named the overall winners and also received the Best Brief Award. The team of Janet King, Denny Ashway, and Tom Conger was also successful, missing second place in a tie-breaker and capturing third. The teams were coached by Barry Harris.

Georgia sent two teams to the regionals of the national Appellate Advocacy Competition sponsored by the American Bar Association. Susan Barker, Keith Fryer, and Leslie Waycaster comprised the team which placed second in the competition held in Nashville. This team, coached by David Ware, will proceed to the finals in Dallas which will be held in August. Georgia's other team was composed of Bridget Beisner, Linda Hunter, and Brian Roe and was coached by Mary Wilkes.

The team of Mike Bagley, Lindsey Roach, and Joe Ward along with coach Neil Gordon represented Georgia in the Holderness Competition held in Chapel Hill, N.C.

In addition to fielding competitive teams, the Moot Court Board also supervises the Russell and Talmadge Competitions which culminate on Law Day and involve the entire student body. The Russell competition for first year students was coordinated by Frank Wilson and William MacArthur. The finals were judged by Georgia Supreme Court Justices Thomas O. Marshall and Jesse G. Bowles, Georgia Court of Appeals Judges J. Kelley Quillian and Norman L. Underwood, and Superior Court Judge Joseph J. Gaines. The Competition was won by Peggy Wells and the runner-up was Jesse Burbage.

The Talmadge Competition, open to all interested second and third year students, was coordinated by Glenn Johnson and Jo Lanier. The judges for the finals for this competition were Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals Judges Phyllis Kravitch and Lewis R. Morgan, and U.S. District Court Judges William C. O'Kelley, Charles A. Moye, Jr., and Anthony A. Alaimo. The winners of the competition, Bridget Beisner and Don Samuel, received a cash prize of $100.00 by defeating the runner-up team of Carlton Henson and Linda Hunter.

Rounding out the Moot Court Executive Board was Vice Chairman Mike Morris, who was responsible for Alumni Relations.

In recognition of their dedication, service, and demonstrated ability, the Order of Barristers was bestowed upon Griff Doyle, Barry Harris, Jane Barwick, Mary Wilkes, Jo Lanier, and Burt Tillman and Mike Morris.

The newly selected members of the 1979-80 National Team are Jere Morehead, David Ralston, and Don Samuel. The 1979-80 Moot Court Executive Board consists of:

J. Michael Levensgood,	Chairman
Bridget Beisner,	Vice Chairman
Brian Roe,	National Team Coach
Leslie Waycaster,	Intrastate Team Coach
Audrey Winter,	Jessup Team Coach
Susan Barker,	ABA Team Coach
Linda Hunter,	Wagner (Labor) Team Coach
Janet King,	Holderness Team Coach
Mary Jane Stewart &
Ken Mauldin	Russell Competition Coordinators
Betsy Cox &
Bob Wharton	Talmadge Competition Coordinators
Mike Bagley &
Joe Ward	Rules Committee Drafters

3. Georgia Law Review

At the close of the 1978 - 1979 academic year, the Georgia Law Review had published issues three and four of Volume XII and issues one and two of Volume XIII. Issues three and four of Volume XIII will appear during the summer of 1979, and issue five, scheduled for publication in October, will contain a "rights theory" symposium headed by Professor Antony Flew of Reading College, England; Professor Richard Epstein of the University of Chicago School of Law, and Professor Alan Gewirth of the Department of Philosophy, University of Chicago.

4. The Georgia Journal of International and Comparative Law

The first issue of Volume 9 of the Georgia Journal featured an article on the Law of the Sea by Georgia Professors Dean Rusk and Milner Ball. Also included were a practitioner's guide to employment taxation of nonresident aliens, and a critical discussion of United States prosecutions for international "business bribes."

Volume 9's other two issues are centered around symposia of articles. The Journal's second issue will feature the first large-scale study published in this country of the "Tokyo Round" of trade negotiations, generally regarded as the most significant development in trade law since World War II. This symposium, "The Tokyo Round: Its Meaning and Effect", is introduced by Robert Strauss, the President's Special Representative for Trade Negotiations, and includes a useful summary of the trade agreements as well as articles outlining their effect upon private practitioners, labor unions, consumers and importers.

The Journal's third issue presents a symposium of equal import, "Legal Structures for the Resolution of International Problems: Thoughts on the Next 40 years." This symposium is devoted to a wide-ranging series of articles examining the likely effect of recent radical changes in the international political and economic climate upon the nature and purpose of international legal structures.

The Journal's student writing program has also received considerable attention during the last year. The fall Writing Workshop was attended by more than twenty-five students, who received supervised instruction and practice in research and writing skills. As a result of the improved quality of student work, the Journal was able to more than double the portion of publication space reserved for student writing.

The highlight of Volume 9's student writing program is the publication of an entirely student-written symposium on United States export promotion policy, produced with the assistance of the Dean Rusk Center. This symposium will appear in the second issue.

In addition to the student symposium, Volume 9 includes student Notes on Transfer of Technology, the North-South Dialogue, and this year's Rusk Award winning paper, a constitutional analysis of the United States export licensing system. Recent developments have been written on the SALT II treaty, Sovereign Immunity, the Import-Export Clause, Deep Seabed Mining Legislation, Import Quotas and Human Rights.

5. The Slip Sheet

The Slip Sheet was published four times during the academic year 1978 - 1979. Student interest and input has increased this year but the publication was hampered by meager budget allocations.

The Slip Sheet this year continued to cover academic events and student and organizational activities. The publication also began developing into a more aggressive forum for student expression. This year the Slip Sheet also was involved in bringing Professor William Rutter, creator of Gilberts Law Summaries, to the law school for a guest lecture. A similar activity is planned for next year. The budget allocation for next year remains the same, but alternate printing arrangements are being investigated, hopefully to allow more issues.

The faculty adviser for the 1978 - 1979 academic year was Paul Kurtz. In addition to the 1978 - 1979 editor, Mark Johnson, the Slip Sheet staff included Terence Moore, John Pilgrim, Ricki Schoenbacher, Richard Tunkle, and Mary K. Anglin. Next year's editor will be Mary K. Anglin.

6. Georgia Society of International and Comparative Law

The aim of the Society of International and Comparative Law is to bring together students, professors and practicing attorneys for discussions and programs concerning topics of current interest in the field. This year the Society enjoyed a solid membership of more than 60 students participating in an outstanding number of Society activities.

The Dean Rusk Award in International Law was presented by the Society this year to Richard Carlson, a third year student. The Rusk Award, given for the best paper written by a student of the Law School concerning a topic in international or comparative law, was given to Carlson for his paper concerning the constitutional requirements of due process in the export licensing process of the United States. The award is offered annually by the Society to stimulate legal scholarship in the area of international and comparative law.

In January, the Society began preparations for its major project for the year, hosting the Regional Competition of the Jessup International Moot Court Competition.

Funding assistance was received from the Law School, from the Student Government Association through the Dean of Students' Office, from the Southern Center for International Studies in Atlanta through Professor Gabriel Wilner, from the International Section of the State Bar of Georgia, and from the Coca-Cola Company. The judges were selected from among attorneys and scholars in international law from Georgia, Florida, West Virginia, Washington, D. C., and Chicago. Georgia's team won the Regional Competition and took the national award for the Best Brief.

An extensive program of guest speaker presentations was maintained throughout the year. Distinguished professionals in international legal affairs led classroom and informal discussion sessions and were guests of the Society at coffee hours and dinners given in honor of their visits to the School.

These included:

John Gornal of the firm of Powell, Goldstein, Frazer & Murphy, Atlanta, Georgia addressed the Society concerning the practice of international commercial law, law school preparation therefore, and approaches to employment searches and interviewing.

Phillippe Schreiber, attorney with a Connecticut firm engaged in oil exploration in waters claimed by Japan and China, discussed the impact of public international law and the law of the sea on commercial ventures involving governmental and private entities in joint development of resources.

Dr. Erick Suy, Legal Counsel to the United Nations and Undersecretary, discussed and delivered a paper concerning the commercial exploitation of outer space and the legal regime therefore, including historical models.

Professor Henry Steiner, of Harvard Law School addressed the Society and the Georgia Journal of International Law at a joint annual banquet concerning the historical philosophy of the U.S. Supreme Court regarding the law of nations. Professor Staiener also took the opportunity of his visit to the school to participate in a regularly scheduled seminar on international legal organizations where he offered his views on the legal ability of U.S. courts to defer to international bodies respecting adjudication and arbitration.

With the recognition of China, the Society undertook several activities to acquaint students with the issues raised thereby. Professor Rusk, at a lunch-time discussion session discussed the legal implications of recognition of a nation without congressional approval, as would be the case with treaty amendments. Several days later, Mr. Donald Clark, of the firm of Hurt, Richardson, Garner, Todd & Cadenhead, an attorney selected to join an ABA mission to China to discuss that country's legal systems, discussed the legal system of China with respect to both internal matters and the conduct of Foreign trade. Arrangements were made for the President of the Society and the Editor-in-Chief of the Georgia Journal of International Law to attend a luncheon in Atlanta in honor of Deng Xiao-Ping, during the Vice-Premier's recent visit to the United States.

Tom Graham, Assistant Legal Counsel to the Office of the United States Special Trade Representative, presented a discussion concerning the results of the Tokyo Round of Negotiations to amend the GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) a multi-lateral agreement to foster trade. These amendments are presently before the Congress for approval.

The 1978 - 1979 officers for the Georgia Society for International and Comparative Law are:

President	Ken Mauldin
Vice-President	Natalie Lewis
Secretary	Trina Modling
Treasurer	Mark Dietricks

7. Phi Alpha Delta

Phi Alpha Delta's purpose is to offer interested law students social and professional outlets that provide a change from the academic routine of law school. Through our service projects, we seek to provide useful services to the students and faculty of the law school, and to practicing members of the bar.

The major annual service project of the Stephens Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta is the publication and distribution of the law school directory, a pictorial roster of students and faculty which includes address, telephone numbers, and biographical information. Proceeds from the sale of the directory go into our scholarship funds.

The scholarship fund provides a $150 scholarship each quarter. The fund is also used to provide a $50 bond which is presented to the winner of the Henry A. Shinn Award. The Shinn Award is given annually in recognition of excellence in legal writing. Entries are judged by a panel of law faculty. This year, scholarships were awarded to Stephanie Wade and Mark Menefee. The winner of the Shinn Award was Gary Seltzer.

The chapter also provides a research service for attorneys throughout the state; a service that also allows law students to get experience working with practical legal problems. The fee for this service is five dollars per hour. Of that sum, four dollars go to the student who did the research, and one dollar goes to the scholarship fund. This year, the scholarship fund was also benefited by our "Pie Throw" at the annual Libel Party.

Our social activities are funded by dues paid by active members. This year there were several pre-and-post-game parties, our annual Halloween and Kentucky Derby parties, and a fifties dance.

This spring we launched a new project; a lecture series designed to bring speakers from the bench and the practicing membership of the bar to the law school to talk to students and interested faculty about the practical aspects of law. The first speaker in this series was the Honorable J. Kelley Quillian of the Georgia Court of Appeals. The series will continue next year, with emphasis on bringing speakers to the school during the fall and winter quarters.

8. Black American Law Students Association

The Black American Law Students Association experienced tremendous growth on several different levels during the 1978 - 1979 academic year. Numerically, the organization grew to an all-time high of thirty-six members. Accompanying this growth in membership was a diversification of the activities in which the organization engaged. During fall quarter, BALSAs worked jointly with the Law Students Civil Rights Research Council to implement a Study-Skills Workshop which was funded through a grant from the Carnegie Foundation. The workshop was the latest in a series of efforts sponsored by BALSAs to address the continuing problem of attrition and to assist first year members in making a smooth transition to the first year of law school. Along a related line, BALSAs continued its efforts to help recruit more Black law students to UGA by participating in a Balsa Regional Recruitment Day at Emory University during fall quarter followed by its own in-house recruitment program during spring quarter.

BALSAs sponsored several political forums which addressed current problems experienced by the Black community in the areas of employment, reverse discrimination and the liberation struggles of African countries. Several activities of a political character were co-sponsored with other student organizations both within and outside the law school. Within the law school, BALSAs worked with the Women Law Students Association and the Lawyer's Guild to produce a seminar on

"Affirmative Action and Title VII Litigation" while outside the law school, BALSAs joined hands with the Black Students Union to conduct a "Black Leadership Development Conference."

Throughout the year, BALSAs sought to address the problems which confront Black students within the law school. On January 15th, BALSAs held a press conference reiterating previous demands for an increase in the number of permanent Black law faculty. Further discussions on these and other related matters have been taken up with the Dean of the law school and amicable resolution to this situation is expected soon.

A recent clothing drive for Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) refugees was conducted by BALSAs and supported by various churches in the local community of Athens. The response was overwhelming. Eighty-five boxes of clothing are enroute to the war-torn areas for the use and benefit of many African people who have been victims during the struggle for liberation.

Several BALSAs members distinguished themselves individually outside of the organization. Nathan Pride was elected as a first year representative to the Honor Court. Linda Hunter was selected to the Moot Court Team and was a finalist in the prestigious Talmadge Competition. Curtis Miller and Al Mitchell served as Senior Editors of the Georgia Journal of International and Comparative Law while also serving as President of the Legal Aid Defender Society and as a National Board Member of the Law Students Civil Rights Research Council, respectively. David Ware served as a member of the Moot Court Board and as Coach of the American Bar Association Competitive Team.

It is apparent from the aforementioned activities that this organization has enjoyed a successful year. The nature nor number of activities conducted could not have been achieved without the cooperation and dedicated services of the BALSAs membership. With similar efforts from our membership, 1979 - 80 appears very promising.

9. The Women Law Students' Association

The Women Law Students' Association at the University of Georgia began the 1978 - 1979 school year with its annual wine and cheese party for the incoming first year women. Fall quarter WLSA sponsored a lunchtime seminar which featured several local women attorneys who spoke on their various practices and how they felt as women in their jobs.

A seminar on Title IX was held which featured University officials and their views on Title IX violations by the University of Georgia. A film was shown on Battered Women and a task force of students was formed to further discuss the problem and offer their aid to the local council on battered women.

Fund raising activities included selling donuts and an auction. The funds were used to aid in sending eight persons to the Tenth National conference on Women and the Law in San Antonio, Texas and to bring a speaker to the law school for Law Day. The theme of Law Day was "Our Changing Rights" and Rose Firestein of the Savannah office of Georgia Legal Services spoke on the realities of the Affirmative Action situation.

Two seminars were held on Title VII, one discussing the plaintiff's case and trial tactics while the other presented the defense strategy.

A career information session for undergraduate and high school women who are interested in law school was held and attracted about fifty participants. It was called "Law School and After for Women" and included information from the admissions office, the placement office and women law students of several different backgrounds and age groups.

The WLSA made its views known on several issues this year. A letter was sent to Cosmopolitan magazine protesting an ad about law school and women, a petition was signed protesting the University of Georgia's "Georgia Girl" program and a table was hosted in front of the main library to collect signatures supporting the ERA in conjunction with the Student Caucus on Women's Issues.

A potluck supper was held to discuss the needs of WLSA and what activities should be focused on next year and a comprehensive support system for incoming women seemed to be the overriding concern.

A cookout was held for all women law students and their guests.

This year the WLSA will give a subscription to Ms. Magazine and several women's law journals to the University of Georgia Law School Library.

A group of women are in the process of writing a resource pamphlet on the ERA to inform local groups of the realities of the effect of the Amendment and to aid in personal presentations on this subject.

10. The National Lawyers Guild

The National Lawyers Guild exists at the University of Georgia School of Law to provide an alternative forum for ideas and activities which law students may not have the opportunity to otherwise receive during their law school careers. The organization provides a non-traditional perspective on such issues as labor rights, affirmative action, women's rights and political processes in the United States and worldwide; it exists to allow the opportunity for activist work and expression by both law students and practicing attorneys as well as lay legal workers in conjunction with issues perceived as having a substantial impact on political and social processes.

During the school year 1978 - 1979 the National Lawyers Guild, Athens Chapter, sponsored a lecture/discussion by Millard Farmer, a well-known and controversial criminal defense attorney whose anti-death penalty work has been the target of both heavy praise and intense criticism. The National Lawyers Guild also co-sponsored, with the Women Law Students Association and the Black American Law Students Association, an affirmative action program by Rose Firestein, an attorney with Georgia Legal Services in Savannah, discussing the current realities and practical impacts of Supreme Court decisions on the affirmative action scene. The program was held in conjunction with 1979 Law Day activities at the University of Georgia School of Law.

The organization is led by an executive board, with George Crooks holding the president's position and Kay Giese as treasurer. Faculty advisor for the year was Professor Donald Wilkes.

VII. SPECIAL EVENTS

A. The John A. Sibley Lecture Series

1. Francis A. Allen, Edson R. Sunderland Professor of Law at the University of Michigan, opened the John A. Sibley lecture series for 1978-79 with his address October 19. Allen's topic was "The Decline of the Rehabilitative Ideal in American Criminal Justice." He reviewed the emerging manner in which Americans view the role of penal institutions and the purpose of criminal sanctions.

Allen is the former dean of the Michigan Law School and a widely published author of articles and books on criminal justice and family law topics. He is a past president of the Association of American Law Schools, and was chairman of the committee that drafted the Illinois Criminal Code.

2. Wade H. McCree, Jr., Solicitor General of the United States, delivered the winter quarter Sibley Lecture March 8. His lecture, entitled "The Academy and the Court" documented the influence which legal educators and writers have had on judicial decision-making. McCree served eleven years on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. He has been a circuit judge in Michigan and was U.S. District Judge for the Eastern District of Michigan.

3. Stanley S. Surrey was the first of two spring quarter Sibley lecturers. He holds the Jeremiah Smith Professorship of Law at Harvard University. Surrey spoke on current federal tax developments. He is the author of Pathways to Tax Reform and other casebooks and textbooks in federal taxation legislation. He served as Assistant Secretary for Tax Policy of the U.S. Treasury Department from 1961-69. Surrey visited the School of Law April 4-6 for the lecture and meetings with classes and student groups.

4. This year the Sibley Lecture program brought four speakers to campus rather than the usual three. Professor Gerald Gunther of Stanford Law School brought the series to a close with his lecture May 24. He examined some potential pitfalls in utilizing the national convention method for amending the United States Constitution. His talk was particularly timely in view of the current proposals by various political leaders to force a balanced national budget by means of constitutional amendment, and to use the convention method for doing so.

Gunther holds the William Nelson Cromwell professorship at Stanford. He is the author of Cases and Materials on Constitutional Law, the most widely used book in American law schools for courses in constitutional law. He is a former law clerk to Chief Justice Earl Warren (1954-55) and Judge Learned Hand (1953-54).

B. Law Day

Law Day, 1978 events took place on April 27 and 28 at the School of Law. Keynote speaker for the weekend of events was The Honorable Griffin B. Bell, Attorney General of the United States. Bell outlined a proposal in which the federal government would be liable for attorney's fees in civil law suits or agency proceedings against a private individual where the government's case is "arbitrary, frivolous, unreasonable, or groundless." He spoke at the 11:00 a.m. Law Day Exercises Saturday morning. The ceremony, which also included student academic awards presentations, was held outdoors in the quadrangle next to the law building.

The 11:00 a.m. program was preceded by a ceremony at which a portrait of former governor Ellis G. Arnall was presented to the School of Law. Arnall, who served as Georgia's governor in 1943-47, is a 1931 graduate of the Georgia Law School. Two other former governors--Carl Sanders and Ernest Vandiver--were on hand to congratulate Arnall as the portrait was unveiled. The ceremony took place in the courtroom.

The traditional Law School Association luncheon was held Saturday, April 28 at 1:00 p.m. at the Georgia Center for Continuing Education. Speaker for the occasion was James T. McIntyre, Director of the Office of Management and Budget. McIntyre is a 1963 graduate of the School of Law. The Law School Association's Distinguished Service Scrolls were presented at the luncheon. Recipients were Sidney Smith and William Gunter. Robert Struble, president of the LSA, was master of ceremonies for the luncheon.

The Law Day banquet, held Friday evening, was co-hosted by the Georgia Law Review and the Moot Court Board. Both groups presented awards to staff members and board members who served in the past year. The Honorable James L. Oakes, judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, was banquet speaker. He gave advice on how to strengthen and expand one's professional skills throughout the legal career. Judge Oakes' law clerk is Benna Solomon, 1978 first honor graduate of the Law School. The banquet, held at the Georgia Center for Continuing Education, was preceded by the Student Bar Association reception at the Lumpkin House.

C. Senior Reception and Diploma Ceremony

The Law School Association sponsored a reception for the senior class and family members on June 10, the evening before graduation. The reception was held at the Taylor-Grady House.

The Diploma Ceremony was held immediately after the University's commencement exercises June 11. The Honorable Phyllis A. Kravitch, newly-appointed judge for the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, was speaker for the ceremony. Michael Mixson served as class president and master of ceremonies. Professors Kurtz and Wellman were faculty marshalls. The graduates who passed the Georgia bar examination were sworn in by Judge James Barrow at a 2:30 p.m. ceremony at the Clarke County Courthouse.

D. Banquet and Events Honoring Judge Lewis R. Morgan

U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell was the keynote speaker at a banquet honoring Judge Lewis R. Morgan of the U.S. Court of Appeals October 20. Bell's address highlighted a day of activities honoring Morgan, a Georgia law graduate who recently assumed senior status after 17 years on the federal bench. Chief Fifth Circuit Judge John Brown also spoke at the banquet, and representatives of the Georgia judiciary, the other fifth circuit judges, Morgan's 25 former law clerks and law school alumni were present for the activities.

Attorneys Homer Drake of Atlanta, Morgan's first law clerk, and Robert Brussack, a law school faculty member and a 1976-77 clerk, presented a retrospective look at Morgan's career. Circuit judges attending the ceremony included, besides Morgan and Brown, Judges Thornberry, Gee, Ainsworth, Tuttle, Hill, Clark, Coleman, Godbold, Rubin, and Tjoflat.

E. Other Speakers and Visitors

In addition to the speakers who visited the campus for the Sibley lectures, Law Day and graduation, several noted public officials visited the School.

U.S. Senator Herman Talmadge visited the University November 20 and spent some time especially with law students in addition to his speech before the University student body at large. Georgia's Lieutenant Governor Zell Miller visited the School November 28, and House Speaker Tom Murphy came to the School November 1.

VIII. ALUMNI RELATIONS

A. The Law School Association

1. The Law School Association Council held its annual fall meeting Saturday, October 21. President Robert Struble was chairman for the meeting.

2. The Law School Association's Law Day Luncheon was held April 28 at the Georgia Center. A brief meeting of the Council was held after the luncheon. The 1979-80 budget for the Law School Fund was adopted.

3. The Law School Association held its two annual breakfast meetings in conjunction with the State Bar of Georgia meetings on December 1, 1978 and June 8, 1979. The law school film was shown at the mid-year meeting. Richard Bradley, president-elect for 1978-79, was installed as president and took office at the June meeting.

4. Reunions. The Law School Alumni Office assisted planning groups in the arrangements for three class reunions during the past year. The Classes of 1968, 1942-46, and 1954 held dinners in Athens.

B. The Board of Visitors

The Law School Board of Visitors held quarterly meetings on October 20, 1978, March 7, and April 27, 1979. Robert Jordan was elected new chairman of the Board for a one year term beginning in January. Two new members joined the Board of Visitors at its winter meeting. They are Earl Leonard and Harold Clarke. Alex Gaines will serve another year, after having filled Phillip Alston's unexpired term.

C. The Law School Fund Campaign

The Law School Fund campaign for 1978-79 was launched in November with the mailing of personal letters to law graduates who are Annual Fund donors giving unrestricted contributions each year.

For the first year, the Law School conducted a Telethon in its annual fund campaign. Approximately 40 law students, Athens alumni, and law faculty members spent the evenings of January 15-17 at the UGA Alumni House placing calls to alumni who graduated from 1964-1976 and who have never made a contribution. Advance mailers were sent to 700 alumni letting them know to anticipate a call. Approximately 305 law alumni pledged to make some gift this year for the Law School Fund. These are all first-time donors. The amount anticipated to come from the workers' efforts is $5,500.

In addition to the Telethon, personal letters were sent to 585 potential donors in ten categories of giving. Preliminary results of the campaign indicate that the personal letter approach and the Telethon outreach have been well received. As of June 30, 1979 the Law School Fund account had received $39,695 given by approximately 700 contributors. The Law School staff coordinator for the Law School Fund, alumni relations and special events is Mrs. Gwen Y. Wood, Assistant to the Dean.

D. The Talmadge Fund Campaign

Unfortunately, the political climate during the past year created a negative effect upon giving and upon the attitude of Talmadge Fund workers to the extent that the development fund program has not progressed quite as fast as had originally been anticipated.

However, in spite of these problems, the report as of June, 1979, shows that total gifts and pledges to The Talmadge Fund amounted to approximately $2 million.

Although an unusually aggressive direct mail campaign to law alumni was undertaken during the past year, alumni participation is still far below the normal expected for an endowment program of this magnitude. It is hoped more alumni commitments can be generated during the coming year.

At present the campaign office is developing special presentations for a limited number of corporations, foundations and individuals which could produce an additional $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 for the endowment fund.

While a full-fledged fund campaign will not be conducted during the 1979-80 fiscal year, the School will seek additional private philanthropic support through the efforts of The Law School "Burd Dog" Club which is currently being organized.

All volunteer members of The Law School "Burd Dog" Club will agree to help locate major gift prospects for the School of Law as a means of funding the School's endeavors in providing a better legal education along with the necessary supporting resources and to assist in other events that will enhance the stature of The University of Georgia School of Law.

IX. PHYSICAL PLANT

A. Current Structures

In addition to the main law building complex, the School of Law utilized several additional structures in 1978-79:

1. Waddel Hall, north campus quadrangle - home of the Dean Rusk Center for International and Comparative Law
2. Emeriti House - renovated residential structure on south Lumpkin Street
3. Athens Legal Aid and Defender Society - offices in Saye Building on north Lumpkin Street
4. Prosecutorial Clinic - housed in the Office of the District Attorney on Hancock Street.

B. Future Physical Plant Plans

Construction costs for a $1.6 million annex to the law library have been approved by the Georgia General Assembly. The annex is part of an $11 million construction package for the University of Georgia which will come from the state's fiscal year 78-79 supplemental budget voted upon by the General Assembly February 22.

The three-story annex will include shelf space for 106,000 volumes, 44 carrels, a reading and study area for students, faculty offices, conference rooms and an audio-visual resources center. It is anticipated that the ground-breaking for the annex, which will be located on Bocock Drive adjacent to the present law library, will be held in November. An 18-month construction period is expected.
