A Letter to Alumni from the Law School Association Council

Two Points of Service

I have the honor of serving as president of the Law School Association this year. In that capacity, I call on you for help with two important matters.

First, the School of Law needs your financial assistance more than ever before. Due to Georgia's economic downturn, the legislature has already reduced the law school's budget 8.0 percent since last fall and additional cuts are on the horizon. Moreover, the bear market for stocks has reduced the rate of return on funds that make up the law school's endowment. The combination of these two factors can be offset only by an increase in your generosity to the law school.

You have been generous to Georgia Law in the past. This year, approximately 70 percent of your gifts were used to fund student scholarships and student programs. Applications for admission to our law school and many others in the country have increased over the past two years. To compete against other leading legal institutions for the best and brightest students, our school needs your financial support for the scholarship funding necessary to bring the most highly qualified students to Georgia Law.

I especially appeal to those graduates of the law school who received scholarship assistance themselves while they were students.

As a former scholarship recipient, you can appreciate more fully how important this assistance is for many students. For ease, a donor card can be found on the "postcard" page at the back of this issue of the Advocate.

Secondly, we are asking your help this year with the Distinguished Service Scroll Award. The association's most prestigious award is presented annually in June to one or more persons whose contributions to the law school and achievements in professional and community life warrant this very special honor. This year, we are inviting all of our alumni to nominate people who are deserving of the award. You may nominate someone by using the form contained in this issue of the Advocate. (Please see the facing page.)

Thank you for the wonderful support you have given to the School of Law in past years. And thank you for helping your alma mater to continue to advance during these challenging economic times.

Sincerely yours,

Paul W. Painter Jr. (J.D.'74)
Law School Association President
