

EXCLUSIVE RANKINGS

U.S. News & WORLD REPORT

2005
EDITION

AMERICA'S BEST GRADUATE SCHOOLS

Georgia Law Ranks 11th Among the Nation's Top Public Law Schools

Georgia Law retained its position among the top 11 public law schools in the nation, fourth among public law schools in the Southeast, and 31st overall, according to U.S. News & World Report's annual rankings of the best graduate schools in the nation.

“Although one must be careful about placing too much emphasis on U.S. News rankings, I'm pleased our law school continues to perform well,” Rebecca H. White, interim dean of the law school, said.

“We have an outstanding law school, and our ranking as the 11th highest public law school in the country is no doubt a source of pride for our alumni and law school community,” she continued. “Our strong academic reputation, student credentials and excellent placement and bar passage rates are solid indicators of the strength of our school.”

Georgia Law shares the 31st position in the U.S. News rankings with the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Georgia
Law