

WHY I SUPPORT GEORGIA LAW...

... it allows the school to remain competitive in attracting the best students and faculty from Georgia and beyond.

When I was a student, I assumed that the University of Georgia School of Law, as a state school, was fully funded by the state and our tuition, and that any donations from alumni were just “extra” funds that weren’t really necessary. After graduating and becoming involved with the Law School Fund, I learned that I could not have been more wrong about the importance of alumni giving.

The Law School Fund provides numerous scholarships for deserving students each year. It fills the gaps that state funding and tuition don’t cover, ensuring that the students of Georgia Law continue to receive the finest legal education possible. And, it allows the school to remain competitive in attracting the best students and faculty from Georgia and beyond.

Just like you, I am extremely proud of the fact that I am a graduate of the University of Georgia School of Law. Every year I contribute to the Law School Fund to help ensure that Georgia Law will continue to improve, and that all current and future students will receive an even better legal education than I did.

For those of you who contribute to the Law School Fund each year, I thank you. For those who have not yet made that commitment, I encourage you to join me in giving back to the school that gave us the foundation for our professional lives. Every gift is important, no matter what the size. Please make the choice to support Georgia Law and the Law School Fund.

To join those who already support Georgia Law by making a gift to the Law School Fund, please contact Phyllis Cooke, director of annual giving, at (706) 542-7637 or cooke@uga.edu or visit our Web site, www.law.uga.edu, to make your gift online.
