ADVANCE SHEET

OBER 8, 1970

University of Georgia School of Law

Vol. 2 No. 1

HOW CAN TEACHERS TAKE STUDENTS TO THE CUTTING EDGE OF THEIR DISCIPLINE UNLESS HE IS WORKING IN THE FIELD.

This was but one aspect of the University State of the Union, delivered by President Davison last week. The second such address was not only a presentation of statistics which tend to prove the upward academic growth of the University; but also, a general statement of University policy.

Skipping all the data which tends to prove our worth as an institution - the following is a very brief statement of the broad outlines and ideas which the President considered not only the student role but also the University role in this society. A role which is in part a response to the demands of the sponsoring society of the school. He said.

The University must be a resource for the solution of problems, not a source of problems. If the University cannot maintain a civil attitude while wrestling with the problems of society, how can we expect the rest of society to remain calm. The University is not a corporate conscience. There must be mutual respect, and co-operation. There must be talking not shouting. Further there is an increasing need for self-discipline on the part of all. These times call for four things. (1) Trust in each Other. (2) Working for the good of the total institution. (3) No toleration of disruption of the University. (4) Fairness to All. "Days of crisis are days of opportunity."

The speech failed to evoke any strong reactions pro or con; merely the one cry of Whitewash!

LAGRANGE COLLEGE MAKES THE BIG TIME!!!! (Editor's Alma Mater)

Last week the Red & Black reported a present discussion of the calendar of the University. This discussion centers around three plans, one of which is the LaGrange College plan, concerning the calendar of the University and the beginning of Fall Quarter. The three plans are the L.C. plan: which would begin Fall Quarter the first of September and end it Thanksgiving; with Winter beginning as usual. The second is the Danner Plan which would be the same as L.C. except that winter quarter would begin after Thanksgiving instead of a five week holiday of L.C.. The final plan is the semester system. The Advance Sheet welcomes your thoughts on the possible benefits of any change in the present calendar, for this will affect the Law School along with the rest of the University.

JUDGE JESSUP SAYS ...

Judge Philip C. Jessup concluded his brief visit to the University of Georgia Law School on September 29 by delivering the first in this year's series of John A. Sibley lectures. Judge Jessup, who recently concluded another phase of his distinguished career in public service as a judge of the International Court of Justice, addressed himself to the problems confronting the United Nations in general and the International Court of Justice in particular. Judge Jessup emphasized the need for the constituent members of the United Nations to reaffirm their commitments to its charter. He felt that while in large measure the United Nations provided the

SO YOU WANT TO GET OUT!!!

It has been rumored that there was spent over the summer months in excess of $3,000 for the new lock system at the Law School; this is totally inaccurate - it was less than $2,000. When questioned concerning the reasons for the change, Mr. Cone replied that there was no way to determine who had keys and this had lead to a lack of security over the physical plant. It had become impossible, further, to keep the building clean. It is the purpose of the lock changers to make it possible to know who has keys to the building and further to lock students, both Law and University out so that the spilled drinks can be cleaned up and the "beer bottles" picked up. If you wonder as to who has keys to the building; everyone who has an office has a key that will get them in the door as well as their office.

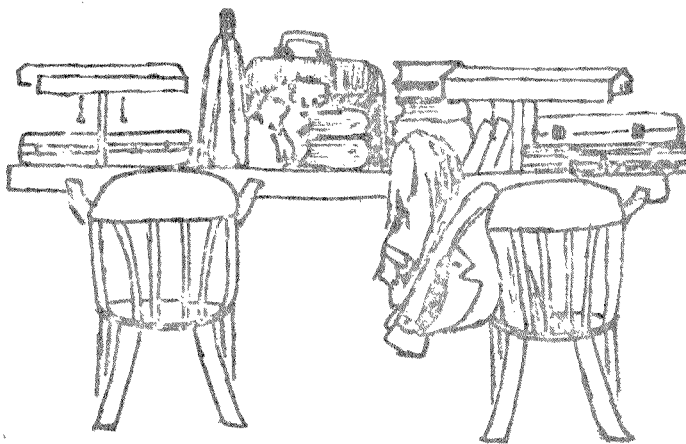

In regards to the library there will be no outstanding keys for students to this facility. The elevator will also have a changed lock so that besides being locked out, a student might be locked in. In regards to a student that hides in the building in lieu of leaving, it must be understood that these students would be treated as any other unauthorized person or as a trespasser.

Mr. Cone emphasized two points: (1) There was a need for the students and others to cooperate with this new system so that it can work. (2) It is the desire of the Administration to work with the students for their own good; and so, every effort will be made to meet the needs of the students. Remember that this is our building and to our benefit to keep it secure and clean.

THOUGHTS OF THE EDITOR....

I am not quite sure whether I should offer congratulations or condolences on all the returnee's successful completion of a year of pain and suffering. It is a real pleasure to welcome the first year students if for no other reason than to be able to say, I told you so, at the end of the year.

I talked with several of the new students at the S.B.A. foam party and was asked about the school. I wish to take this opportunity to pass on the small bit of wisdom that I have gained after two years of work here. First, don't ever listen to any second or third year students. We tend to bend the truth to make a more horrible tale of woe. Secondly, don't ever assume that you will not make it. In other words think positive.

And always remember there's hope for everyone; after all, I'm back.

Several people have approached me and asked when the swipe sheet would return to the news stands. Well, we are back in full force and glory. I wish to take this opportunity to explain a few of the basic guides for this paper which controlled past issues and will control future issues. It is very difficult to get students to react. We seem to be basically a passive group of observers rather than active participants. For this reason the Advance Sheet will tend to overstate in the hope of evoking reaction.

Secondly, when we do overstate something, it is your duty to call us to task. We welcome this; for it offers the only real means of communication. We welcome your letters and will print all whether from student, staff, administration, or faculty. Please feel free to use the paper for it is yours.

theoretical framework for achieving world peace, its failures in practice were largely due to an unwillingness of its members to abide by its charter. Judge Jessup went on to state that too often the United Nations, generally and the Secretary General specifically, are seen as the "super-apothecary of the world to whom everyone turns for prescriptions of peace." He then added that there is no "wonder-drug" or "panacea" for the ills of international relations. Turning next to the internal structure of the organization, Judge Jessup advocated a return to what he called "quiet diplomacy." The favored periodic meetings of the Security Council and the creation thereunder of a commission to investigate treaty violations and political disputes. In this regard he reiterated that viable solutions to international disputes were more likely to emerge if investigations and discussions of such problems were not subjected to the pressures of publicity

Briefly addressing himself to the question of admitting Red China to the U.N. he stated "what better place is there to put your enemies." He further suggested universal membership in the U.N. Drawing upon his personal experiences on the judge proceeded to examine the problems confronting the International Court of Justice. Of primary concern, he felt, was the unwillingness of nations to submit international disputes to the Court's jurisdiction. This, he added, could be attributed either to the fear or uncertainty among nations of the outcome, the desire of nations to settle international disputes through their own governmental structures, or a general unwillingness of nations to subrogate their own laws to international law in such disputes. He felt however that the court could serve a more positive function in rendering advisory opinions to individual nations and the U.N. on the applicability of international law in given situations. con't.pg 6 col/2.

The judge concluded his speech on a positive note suggesting that those critics who regard the U.N. as the "town meeting of the world" or an "ineffectual police force" need only weigh the value of the UNCTAD, the World Health Organization, the International Labor Organization among others on the other side of the scale. Finally, the judge pointed to the U.N. as a stabilizing force in the international community which, while far from perfect, at least provided the potential mechanism for the development of international law and ultimately world peace.

COACH DUNG'S SPORTS BRIEF

The summer seems to have soothed the losses of the once great Legal Eagle Softball team, as the entire team has returned for the fall quarter.

After a rusty start the Eagles wound up with an even season at three wins and three losses. At the end of the season Butterfingers Dickerson and Yo-Yo Curtis promised to play in the Canadian league, but they must have relied on the Crashmobile because they never got there.

Eagle fans and players alike have rejoiced at the appointment of Mother Mobley as Athletic Director. Mother Mobley has informed me that the Eagles have qualified to play football, volleyball, and horseshoes. Mother also appointed Rogers Lungeforth to head honcho of the Eagles football team. It seems that Lungeforth needs to establish a rapport with his team as Pretty Boy Glass has warned that he won't be taking orders from anyone this year.

The Eagles haven't lost a football game in several years, but they will open the 1970 season without a single practice session aspiring to the possible consequences. I confronted Coach Lungeforth in his office. He explained his tranquility by giving me his starting line up. Mike Casper will emerge as the starting quarterback. Other notables are Ice Box Fulker, Fleetback Leroy Jones and defensive ace Terror Freedman.

I found Bubble Berry and Fatboy Adilman battling it out at the Coliseum for the paddleball championship while Musclehead Cagle remains the undisputed king of the handball world.

The Ruggers play at home this coming Sunday afternoon on the intramural field. Hanging it up for a beer break.

If you think that you can defend the position of either of those persons called the candidates for Governor, we would appreciate your sharing with us those reasons. Please contact John Clerke about the use of the Advance Sheet in winning a few votes.

Laws ... are the product of selfishness, deception, and party prejudice. True justice is not in them, and cannot ever be in such laws.

RUMOR HAS IT !!!

That the space under the building between the Auditorium and the Lounge will be converted into three parking places; for Dean Murray, Dean Rusk, and Dean Cowen.

Cans? --- Outlines? --- Gilberts? A puzzled 'What the?' is most likely to be the new law students' response upon leaving this bit of law school jargon for the first time, but although these terms are not likely to be found in a Black's Law Dictionary, they are likely to become as much a part of the law student's vocabulary as 'consideration' and 'proximate cause'.
