The School of Law and Institute of Law and Government

On this Annual Law Day we welcome you to the School of Law and to the Institute of Law and Government. In a period of service to the State of almost a century, the School of Law observes with pride the contributions of its alumni, faculty, and students. While we are mindful of these notable achievements, we also realize that the School must continue to do its part in meeting the increasingly complicated demands of modern society upon law and its institutions. The Institute of Law and Government, an integral part of the School of Law, studies law in action and serves as a laboratory of law where an analysis of both substantive and procedural Georgia law is undertaken and recommendations made for needed improvements. Continued support of alumni and friends, various branches of the State Government, the organized bar, and other interested agencies and groups will go far toward increasing the usefulness of both the School and Institute. We look forward each year to the return of our alumni and friends. We know you will enjoy the fellowship with one another and that you will derive much pleasure and benefit from renewing your association with the School and learning something of its present work and our hopes for the future.
