

NAMES IN THE NEWS

Lt. Gov. Zell Miller has appointed State Sen. Pierre Howard of Decatur to the Medicaid Coverage Study Committee and the Study Committee on Mental Health and Retardation. The Medicaid panel will study the problems caused by the reduction of federal funds for Medicaid and for other health programs in the state. It was created under a resolution co-sponsored by Howard, and passed during the 1983 General Assembly.

Mark Rusch III, a Redan High School student, was awarded a Brevard Music Scholarship which is sponsored annually by the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs and Georgia Power Company. He will spend six weeks this summer at the Brevard Music Center in North Carolina studying under a staff of approximately 100 outstanding music teachers from throughout the nation. Rusch, a trombone player, has performed with the DeKalb Youth Symphony and the Atlanta Symphony Youth Orchestra.

Kim Wisenbaker, a Dunwoody High School student, was named a 1983 United States National Award winner in the field of art. Winners are picked on the exclusive recommendation of teachers or other school sponsors and upon certain standards of selection. Less than 10 percent of all high school students are picked for the award.

The South DeKalb Y.M.C.A. announced that former candidate for state representative of the 50th district has joined their board of directors. He will bring new ideas to the board for continuous services to the community.

Dunwoody resident H. E. Thranhardt, president of J.E. Hanger Co. Inc., was elected vice-chairman of Georgia Tech's Center for Rehabilitation Technology Board of Directors. The center was established in 1980 by Tech to bring together the primary disciplines of the university in support of human services agencies in meeting the needs of person with handicapping conditions.

Library Named For Former Dean

The new annex to the library of the University of Georgia School of Law has been named for the late J. Alton Hosch, former dean of the school. Hosch's widow, Nina, of Decatur, is pictured in front of the building with J. Ralph Beard, current dean of the school. Hosch, who died in 1980, was a university faculty member for 35 years and was law school dean for 29 years. When he retired in 1964, he had been dean longer than any dean of a law school at that time approved by the American Bar Association.