SCHOOL of LAW

THE UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA
Dorothy Roberts is a professor at Northwestern University School of Law, with joint appointments as a faculty affiliate in the Department of Sociology, a faculty fellow of the Institute for Policy Research, and a faculty affiliate of the Joint Center for Poverty Research. She received her B.A. from Yale College and her J.D. from Harvard Law School. Professor Roberts has written and lectured extensively on the interplay of gender, race, and class in legal issues concerning reproduction and motherhood. She is the author of Killing the Black Body: Race, Reproduction, and the Meaning of Liberty (Pantheon, 1997), which received a 1998 Myers Center Award for the Study of Human Rights in North America, as well as the coauthor of casebooks on constitutional law and women and the law. She has published more than fifty articles and essays in books, scholarly journals, newspapers, and magazines, including Harvard Law Review, Yale Law Journal, University of Chicago Law Review, Social Text, and The New York Times. Her influential article, "Punishing Drug Addicts Who Have Babies: Women of Color, Equality, and the Right of Privacy" (Harvard Law Review, 1991), has been widely cited and is included in a number of anthologies.

Professor Roberts has been a visiting professor at the University of Pennsylvania and Stanford, and a fellow at Harvard University's Program in Ethics and the Professions. She serves as a consultant to the Center for Women Policy Studies in Washington, D.C., and as a member of the board of directors of the National Black Women's Health Project, the National Coalition for Child Protection Reform, and the Public Interest Law Center of New Jersey. She has delivered several endowed lectures, including the James Thomas Lecture at Yale Law School, was elected twice by the Rutgers School of Law graduating class to be faculty graduation speaker, and was voted outstanding first-year course professor by the Northwestern School of Law class of 2000. She received the Radcliffe Graduate Society Medal in June, 1998. She is currently working on a book entitled Shattered Bonds: The Color of Child Welfare, which will be published by Basic Books in November 2001.
THE EDITH HOUSE LECTURE SERIES IN LAW

“Missing Voices: Black Mothers and the Politics of Child Welfare”

presented by

Dorothy Roberts
Professor of Law, Northwestern University School of Law

Thursday, February 15, 2001

3:30 p.m.

Law School Auditorium
Welcome........................................................Marie E. Partee, WLSA President

Introductory Remarks .................................................. Anne Allen Westbrook, WLSA Vice President

Introduction of Lecturer .............................................. Judge Patricia Barron

Lecture ........................................................................... Professor Dorothy Roberts

Questions and Answers .................................................... Professor Dorothy Roberts

Conclusion ........................................................................ Anne Allen Westbrook

Reception follows in Law School Rotunda

As one of the largest student organizations at the University of Georgia School of Law, WLSA’s mission is to strengthen women by providing educational, professional and social events that benefit all students, with a focus on women in law. Past activities have included projects with Habitat for Humanity, clothing drives for the Battered Women’s Shelter, an annual welcome party for first year students, and an annual wine and cheese reception for faculty and students. The high point of WLSA’s spring schedule is the Edith House Lecture.
Previous Edith House Lecturers

Susan Oki Mollway, United States District Judge for the District of Hawaii, “Getting Confirmed as a Federal Judge.” October 6, 1999

Sarah Weddington, Associate Professor, The University of Texas at Austin, “Roe v. Wade—25 Years Later.” September 23, 1998

Anne M. Coughlin, Class of 1941 Research Professor, University of Virginia, “Sex and Guilt.” October 15, 1997

Martha S. West, Professor of Law, University of California at Davis, “What’s in It for Me? Why Don’t White Women Support Affirmative Action?” October 24, 1996

Mary E. Becker, Professor of Law, University of Chicago, “The First Amendment and Sexual Harassment at School and at Work.” November 2, 1995

Chief Judge Dorothy Toth Beasley, Georgia Court of Appeals, “Why Are We Here?” January 25, 1995

Carrie Menkel-Meadow, Professor of Law, University of California, Los Angeles, “Mainstreaming Feminist Legal Theory and the Production of Legal Knowledge.” March 12, 1993

Patricia J. Williams, Associate Professor of Law, University of Wisconsin, “Banished Bodies.” March 13, 1992

Mari J. Matsuda, Associate Professor of Law, University of Hawaii, “Towards a Feminist Theory Interconnecting Subordinations.” April 8, 1991

Patricia A. Cain, Professor of Law, University of Texas, “A Postmodern Feminist Critique of Equal Protection Doctrine.” March 15, 1990

R. Lea Brilmayer, Nathan Baker Professor of Law, Yale University, “International Affairs and the Implausibility of Democracy.” April 6, 1988

Elaine Vogel-Polsky, Professor of Law, University Libre de Bruxelles, “Positive Action within the European Economic Community.” September 25, 1985

Justice Shirley S. Abrahamson, Supreme Court of Wisconsin, “Justice and Juror.” March 7, 1985

EDITH HOUSE LECTURE FUND CONTRIBUTION INFORMATION

The Women Law Students Association is grateful to Dean David Shipley and the law school faculty for their support of this lecture series. The series is made possible through the generous contributions of alumni, students, faculty and friends of the Edith Hou se endowment fund for the Edith House Lecture Series in Law.

Individuals who would like to make a financial contribution to the House Lecture Fund may make checks payable to “UGA Foundation” and note on the memo line “for Edith House Lecture Fund.” Please mail contributions to the attention of WLSA, UGA School of Law, Athens, GA, 30602-6012.

The Women Law Students Association and the Law School community appreciate your interest and support of this endowment fund.
Edith House, a native of Winder, Georgia, was co-valedictorian of the Class of 1925, and one of the first two women to graduate from the University of Georgia School of Law. Following graduation, she practiced four years in Clearwater, Florida. She was then appointed Assistant United States Attorney for the Southern District of Florida, and held that post for the next thirty years. When the Southern District was subdivided to create the new Middle District, Ms. House was appointed to the post of United States Attorney for the new Southern District. Upon completion of the transitional period, Ms. House retired in 1963. She lived in Jacksonville, Florida, until her death on December 14, 1987. It is in memory of her hard work and pioneering spirit that this lecture series is dedicated.