UGA School of Law grads record highest state bar passage rate for fifth consecutive year

The results are in, and the University of Georgia School of Law is proud to share that for the fifth consecutive year our graduates had the highest passage rate for first-time bar examination takers in Georgia for the July sitting. We hope you will join us in congratulating these new lawyers – whose success can be attributed to preparation, hard work and the world-class legal education they received as the result of your active engagement and financial support.

This achievement is yet another important example of why a degree from our law school is a great return on investment. Passing the bar on the first try allows our graduates to get started on their careers and begin to make their own contributions to the legal profession soon after graduation. And with the lower debt load that our School of Law affords – due to donor-supported financial aid – our graduates can choose the career path they most desire.

We want to thank you for the important role you play in our law school's continued success. Through your financial contributions, participation in our mentorship program and opportunities for internships and jobs for our graduates, you are helping us deliver on our promise to prepare the next generation of legal leaders.
