$1 million gift to law school will fund student scholarships

Dear alumni/alumnae and friends,

I am pleased to share with you that thanks to a $1 million gift, law students who have demonstrated success in the face of challenging circumstances will have assistance as they earn their law degrees from the University of Georgia School of Law.

The Brian and Kim Cain Family Scholarship Fund, established by 1987 alumnus Brian P. Cain and his wife, Kim McLemore Cain, will offer two full scholarships for students who have overcome significant hardships while on their journey to law school.

The creation of this scholarship honors Brian's and Kim's parents, who valued hard work, higher education and faith, and set a lifelong example of service and philanthropy.

The cost of a legal education should never deter a passionate student from working toward his or her goals, and the School of Law is grateful the Cain family has recognized this need and made a commitment to help future lawyers and leaders as they earn their degrees and pursue jobs that make sense for them without burdensome debt.

Please join me in extending sincere thanks to Brian and Kim for this generous gift, and thanks to each and every member of our law school community who has answered the call – and continue to answer the call – to invest in the next generation of leaders as we advance our efforts to be the nation's best return on investment in legal education.

Sincerely,

Peter B. "Bo" Rutledge
Dean and Herman E. Talmadge
Chair of Law
