The Role and Limits of International

Students recognize top professors

The student body at Georgia Law has selected professors Lonnie T. Brown, Jr., Dan T. Coenen and Jason M. Solomon for faculty awards this year.

The Student Bar Association Professionalism Award, which recognizes the professor who best succeeds in the teaching of professional responsibility and service to the community, was given to Brown, an associate professor. This is the third time he has received this award since joining the Georgia Law faculty in 2002. Brown teaches courses on civil procedure, legal profession and conflict of laws.

Coenen, University Professor and Hosch Professor, was honored with the C. Ronald Ellington Award for Excellence in Teaching, previously known as the Student Bar Association Faculty Book Award for Excellence in Teaching. He has led courses at Georgia Law on contracts and sales, constitutional law and torts for more than 20 years and has been honored with this award on five other occasions. The award is given to faculty who students feel most effectively conveys the knowledge and understanding of what the law is and inspires students to think analytically and critically about what the law can become.

The John C. O'Byrne Memorial Award for Furthering Faculty-Student Relations was presented to Solomon, who joined the law faculty in 2005, in appreciation of his significant contributions to enhancing faculty and student interactions. He is an assistant professor and teaches courses on torts, complex litigation and employment law.

Giménez receives Gold Medal of Merit

Members of the Pernambuco judiciary recently honored Dean Rusk Center Associate Director María Eugenia Giménez (LL.M. '89) with a Gold Medal of Merit for her work as co-director of the International Judicial Training Program.

The Brazilian judiciary has been participating in the IJTP every year since the program's inception 10 years ago. During a recent visit, the Brazilians recognized the long-standing relationship by presenting a total of five Gold Medals of Merit to individuals who have worked with and supported the IJTP.

Honorees included: Georgia Supreme Court Chief Justice Leah W. Sears and Presiding Justice Carol W. Hunstein; State Court of Clarke County Chief Judge N. Kent Lawrence; Co-director of the IJTP and Director of the Institute of Continuing Judicial Education of Georgia Richard D. Reaves; and Giménez.

Since 1998, foreign judges and court personnel from around the world have come to Georgia Law through the IJTP to study the workings of the U.S. judicial system and to gain ideas and insights they can then implement in their own country, according to Giménez.

More than 200 people, from nations such as Armenia, Brazil, the Czech Republic, Egypt and Ghana, have participated in the program.
