THE UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

SCHOOL OF LAW

October, 1988

Dear Prospective Employer:

We are pleased to introduce our minority law students who are listed in this directory for your hiring consideration. The University of Georgia School of Law is committed to increasing the number of those who traditionally have been under-represented in the legal profession. Obviously, a correlative commitment is needed by the public and private law sector if this goal of increasing the membership of minorities in the bar is to be attained.

We are providing this directory to your organization in an effort to facilitate your consideration of employing these individuals. The students in this booklet represent a vital resource, and each candidate possesses both academic and human achievements that show their readiness to enter the legal profession. These talented and dedicated men and women can have a significant impact on the future of the legal profession and of society in general.

Individuals listed in this booklet may be contacted through our law school's Placement Office at (404) 542-7541, which operates a message service for our law students. If you prefer, you may send letters in care of our law school's Placement Office to the students in whom you are interested. Letters will be delivered to the students' law school message boxes.

We welcome your interest in our minority law students and hope you will join us in our efforts to achieve a qualified, proficient and diverse legal community.

Sincerely,

C. Ronald Ellington
Dean
