The University of Georgia School of Law

Intellectual Property Directory
October 4, 1993

Dear Intellectual Property Practitioner:

It is with great pleasure that I introduce the highly-qualified members of the Intellectual Property Association at the University of Georgia School of Law. These first-, second-, and third-year students each have a demonstrated interest in the growing field of intellectual property law. Many are engineers. The University of Georgia is very proud of the strength of the student body. Each of the three class years at the University of Georgia has median LSAT scores of 163. For the benefit of those of us who took the LSAT on the 200-800 scale, an individual with a 163 LSAT traditionally would score 665 and place in the top 10% nationally. Also enclosed in the booklet is statistical information on the University of Georgia School of Law for your perusal.

I thought you would be interested to note that the University of Georgia School of Law recently approved the publication of what may be the nation’s first general Intellectual Property Law Journal. This journal will be published annually and is being sponsored by renowned Intellectual Property firms in Atlanta. In addition, on 20-21 January 1994 the First Annual SciLaw™ Recruitment Conference will be held in Orlando, Florida. This new comprehensive job fair will address the needs of employers seeking law students and graduates with a technical background for positions in Intellectual Property, Environmental, Health, and Computer Law. Conceived of by the University of Georgia and now joined by twenty-three other fine law schools in the southeast, the SciLaw™ fair promises to be an important recruiting tool for employers.

I have taken the liberty of writing to you as you have indicated in your law firm description that intellectual property (patent, trademark, copyright, or trade secrets) is a focus area in your practice. I am confident that you will appreciate the credentials of these students. Should you desire to speak with any of these individuals or should you wish to schedule on-campus interviews this Spring, please feel free to telephone my office at (706) 542-7541 or to FAX at (706) 542-5167.

Thank you for your attention, and I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Brent E. Routman, Director

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Institution
The Lumpkin School of Law, the oldest organized law school in Georgia, was established at the University of Georgia in 1859 through the efforts of Joseph Henry Lumpkin, the first Chief Justice of the Georgia Supreme Court. For the school's first several years, Lumpkin and the school's co-founders, Thomas R. R. Cobb (who authored the first codification of Georgia law) and federal attorney William Hope Hull, held classes in Lumpkin's cramped Atlanta law offices.

Today, the Lumpkin Law School occupies a modern and self-contained 135,700 square-foot complex, its law library is one of the largest in the United States, and its uniformly outstanding student body of nearly 600 ranks consistently in the nation's top 20 percent or better. In fact, the median LSAT score for first-year was 163, 10 percentile.

Strong state and private support enables the school to support 21 endowed professorships in a full-time faculty of 34, and its three student journals, the Georgia Law Review, the Intellectual Property Journal, have won national and international recognition as leaders in legal research and scholarship.

In 1992, the University of Georgia became the National Champion in the 42nd Annual National Moot Court Competition in New York City. This competition for third-year law students is the oldest and most prestigious moot court competition in the United States. Georgia has previously won national (1990 & 1991) and international championships (1990) in the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition.

The Lumpkin Law School's distinction in the field of international law is complemented by the work of the school's Dean Rusk Center for International and Comparative Law, its faculty exchanges with universities in Great Britain and France, its participation in summer programs in the Hague and Brussels, and its extremely successful England Summer Clerkship Program. The law library is also distinguished by its designation as a depository by the European Economic Community, the only library in the Southeast to be designated a Specialized European Documentation Center.

Georgia Law School graduates have clerked at all levels of Federal and State Court including the United Supreme Court, United States Circuit Courts of Appeals, and United States District Courts.

To meet the needs of this increasing number of Georgia graduates seeking employment throughout the United States and internationally, Georgia participates in approximately eleven off-campus job consortia in addition to the programs in Europe referred to above.

The Office of Legal Career Services is committed to increasing the participation of minorities in the legal profession. Georgia was a founding member of and participates in the Southeastern Minority Job Fair (SMJF) and in the important Atlanta Bar Association Clerkship Program. Employers are strongly encouraged to consider the rich pool of highly-credentialed minority students at the University of Georgia.

C. Job Posting for Students or Alumni?

1. For employers who do not interview students on-campus, will you
   - Yes, send upon request, one package containing resumes/transcripts?
   - Yes, post a notice directing students to apply directly to employer?

2. If you provide job listings for graduates, describe how to send notice, when employers can expect responses, length of time notice is posted, etc.:
   - Each week the latest job postings are recorded on the "Alumni Hotline" and included in the monthly Alumni Newsletter. The newsletter is mailed to approximately 100 UGA law alumni with a range of legal experience from one to ten years. Employers may call in their job opportunity for experienced lawyers to be announced on the "Hotline" and to be published in the Newsletter. There is no fee assessed to employers for these services.

D. First-Year Students: Placement Regulations

Describe any special regulations pertaining to the recruiting of first-year students in addition to the NALP guidelines. For example, are first-year students eligible for spring OCI? What are job notices posted during second semester?

First-year students are not permitted to interview on-campus during fall semester. First-year students are permitted to participate in spring OCI. Our office will post job notices for first-year students at any time during the academic year.

E. Minority Programs

- Does your school have any special programs to assist minorities in seeking employment? Please describe.
  1. We participate in the Atlanta Bar Association’s Minority Clerkship Program.
  2. NALP Southeastern Law School’s Minority Job Fair - The SE Minority Job Fair is sponsored by Southeastern law schools and will be held on.
  3. Minority Mentoring Program in Atlanta and Northeast Georgia.

F. Non-discrimination Policy

- Please use the space below to state your school’s non-discrimination policy.
- In compliance with The University of Georgia’s policy, accessibility to all programs operated by this institution is guaranteed to all otherwise qualified persons. Therefore there shall be no discrimination on the basis of race, national origin, religion, creed, sex, sexual orientation, age, handicap, or veteran status, in either the selection of students for participation in the program or to any aspect of the program, provided, however, that with respect to handicap, the handicap must not be such as would, even with reasonable accommodation, in and of itself, preclude the student’s effective participation in the program.
